BOY CRIMINALS PUZZLE TO JURISTS

One Magistrate Sends 16-Year-Old Youth To Prison 30 To 39 Years

SHOCKED AT HIS CRIMES

Higher Type Defectives Are Most Dangerous And Hardest Of All To Handle

NEW YORK, Dec. 12—What is to be done with the boy criminal—the youth who seems too young to be put behind prison bars, yet actually is "a menace to the community?"

Judge Burt J. Humphreys, of the Queens County Court, has answered the question in the only manner that seems feasible to him—he has sent a 16-year-old boy to prison for a term of not less than 30 or more than 39 years. Albert Kruger, alias Albert Johnson, the "convict," is guilty of robbery, assault and grand larceny.

Judge Humphreys, shocked at the enormity of the boy's crimes, on sentencing him, declared:

JUDGE SHOCKED

"You are a very young boy, so young that it shocks me to think that a boy of your age could commit crimes so brutal in their nature. You have had every opportunity to live a decent life, yet you have always shown that you preferred a life of crime.

"I find there the some people to when a month in jail is as good as a lifetime, while there are others who never should have their liberty, and I think you are one of those.

"No house is safe with you at large, and people in Jamaica were actually afraid to remain alone in their homes, fearing that you might enter and do them bodily harm. I am afraid you will never change, therefore I must send you away for the protection of the public."

Efforts were made to prove that the boy was insane, for his depredations were marked not only by shrewd criminal talent, but by acts of fiendish cruelty. The law decided he was sane, but criminal.

DANGEROUS TYPE

Asked to comment on the Kruger case, Justice Franklin C. Hoyt, who has studied many similar cases, while presiding over the Children's Court, declared that this particular type of criminality is most dangerous of all, because, being high-grade defectives, they often escape interception which is sure to apprehend those of lesser intelligence.

"It is easy enough to take care of idiots and imbeciles—such cases solve themselves usually," Justice Hoyt began.

"The higher grade defectives are not recognized at first glance, and yet they are always the ones liable to commit the most serious crimes at the slightest suggestion.

"The insane can be recognized and dealt with as the idiots and imbeciles can.

"It is these borderland cases that are the most dangerous.

"We need smaller homes and smaller schools in which to study these more difficult types the higher grade defectives."

In answer to the expected sympathy so generally called forth by the spectacle of a boy in prison, Justice Hoyt makes answer.

MENACE COMMUNITY

"The community is not safe with such a boy at large.

"Until some change is effected in his moral balance it is likewise unsafe to return him to the community.

"This type, which we meet occasionally, is the moral imbecile, sane and abnormally intelligent rather than deficient mentally. But he has no sense of moral values or any inhibitions to restrain him.

"With many cases we know immediately that we are dealing with defectives. With insanity it is different, too; that is, comparatively easy to establish. The insane can be cared for, and the subnormal can be trained.

"Long sentences are necessary in some of the 'custodian cases.' On the other hand, a number of the higher grade types, after training, can return as self-supporting members of the community."

Most of us feel sorry that a 16-year-old must go to jail for any reason at all, but what else is there to do? We can scarcely wait till these lawless youngsters add more notches to their weapons by increasing their numbers of prey.

STORMY MEETING OF INTL. LEAGUE IS INEVITABLE

NEW YORK, Dec. 11. — Altho surface indications were that everything was to be jovial and merry at the annual meeting of the International League at the Hotel Commodore today with the amiable delegates losing neither their poise, their temper, intimation was given as the confab got under way, that a bitter fight is to be staged by members of the league over the failure of the Baltimore club to dispose of a number of their star players so as to equalize the playing strength of the league.

John Conway Toole, president of the organization declared the meeting was solely to draw up the annual schedule and would be a quiet affair. However, it is understood Walter P. Sapgood of the Rochester club would inject the fireworks into the convention in the form of a resolution demanding a show down on the failure of Jack Dunn of the Orioles to dispose of three leading members of his club.

As the International club meeting got under way, it was reported that the St. Louis Cardinals had offered Dunn $25,000 and five players for Boley. Dunn refused the offer, it was said.

JAPAN PRESSED BY GROWING POPULACE

Tight Little Island Empire Is Alarmed As Birth Rate Increases

FOREIGN SHORES BLOCKED

Unable To Send Surfeit Either To California, Australia Or Asiatic Regions

By JAMES McCLAIN,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

TOKIO, Dec. 12.—Japanese publications and statesmen are debating the population and expansion problem again with all the vigor of old; yet for the most part it is in a newer light and with greater cognizance of the real problem and the place to find the solution. The reason for this new outburst is publication of the vital statistics for 1921, which show that in 12 months the number of mouths to be fed by the island empire increased by exactly 724,609.

That is a growth of 12.37 to 1,000, and increase of 1.59 to the 1,000 of births over deaths for 1921. The increase over 1920 comes not from the fact that more children were born last year, but from the fact that total deaths declined most, the birth rate also declining. Births total 2,031,103—1,038,250 boys and 992,853 girls—a decline of 1.13 from the 1920 birth rate. Deaths totaled 1,306,494 a decrease from the previous year of 2.72 to 1,000.

BIRTH RATE GROWS

Since 1897 the average birth rate for Japan is still more than 30 to 1,000—a nation whose boundaries are limited increasing at the rate of nearly three-quarters of a million annually. Unable longer to send the comparatively few willing to leave Japan to Australia and California and realizing that expansion on a large scale on the Asiatic mainland is impossible because the temperate climes are already teeming with a population which in actual competition underbids and outworks the Japanese and because the northern districts are too cold to be popular with the warmth loving Nipponese, the press and some public figures are beginning to face the problem squarely and fairly. They are beginning to see the problem in a new light. While not yet generally accepted there is an increasing tendency to admit that this is an internal problem—one that Japan must solve unaided.

INDUSTRY INEVITABLE

Business leaders have attempted since the opening of Japan to prevent this country from becoming a strictly industrial nation. But, with half of Japan consisting of poor, mountainous land which will support no one, but yet which contains a world of undeveloped water power, that end is inevitable. Industries here are growing slowly mainly because of general business tactics and lack of world business sense. The faster rice fields are turned into factory grounds economically operated by power from the mountains the more will it aid the nation to feed its fast multiplying mouths.

Distasteful as it sounds, Japan has a real need for birth control. Most of the younger, well-educated people are beginning to see this, but they are outnumbered by those who don't.

FIGHT BIRTH CONTROL

Just recently a birth promotion organization was formed, its object being to get Government assistance to prevent the birth rate from declining. This association advocates that all men whose family includes three or more children be exempt from income tax and that the father be given a subsidy to enable him to properly rear and educate every child after the fifth.

Some other vital figures included in the 1921 census report are interesting. Divorces were practically the only thing that increased, numbering 102.8 to the 1,000 while marriages were 9.14 to 1,000, a decrease of 9.76. This is not as startling as one would think at first, considering the economic depression in Japan, which attained its worst in 1921, and also considering the fact that all one has to do to secure a divorce is to go to the city office and have the records changed, after showing some good reason, which, in practice, is easy to do.

OVER A MILLION PERSONS ARE HELPED IN LAST YEAR BY THE TRAVELERS' AID

CHICAGO, Dec. 11 — Almost 1,150,000 persons in the United States were assisted during the last year by the Travelers' Aid society, it is shown by the report of Bayard G. Eckard, general secretary. In Chicago alone more than 20,000 persons were aided.

Elderly persons, children and foreigners were those who received most of the help. More than 1,000 telegrams were sent on behalf of "lost" persons and 1,000 persons were escorted to their homes.

Numerous "puppy love" elopements were frustrated, the youngest being the case of a girl of nine who was eloping from Chicago with a boy of six.

"At another time we stopped two girls of 15 who had come to Chicago with two boys of 16, the girls riding in the day coaches and the boys 'riding the rail,'" Mr. Eckard said. "We notified their parents, who happily were of the old-fashioned kind. The runaways were welcomed home, not with fatted calves, but with sound spankings."

HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE

Physician's Discovery Safely Reduces It To Normal and Dizzy Spells Disappear.

If your blood pressure is too high you cannot pass a life insurance examination.

Perhaps you don't know whether you have this trouble or not, but if you have occasional dizzy spells, shortness of breath, pains in the head, hot flashes, are nervous, moody or don't sleep well, your blood pressure is probably higher than it ought to be even if you don't realize it.

Norma, the prescription of a Buffalo physician, reduces high blood pressure and when this result is accomplished all the ailments caused by this abnormal condition will quickly disappear. Wimmer Arnold Co. and reliable druggists everywhere have a steady demand for NORMA—it is purely vegetable and contains nothing harmful.

O'CONNOR AND 3 MORE CHIEFS ARE EXECUTED

Free State Determined To Quelch Reprisals, Cosgrave Announces

DUBLIN, Dec. 11 — Dublin was comparatively quiet today. Summary execution of "Rory" O'Connor and three other Republican irregular chiefs, together with the Free Staters' threat of further executions, gave at least a temporary setback to the Republicans' plans for counter reprisal violence.

Eamonn DeValera who is in hiding is expected to issue a public announcement bearing upon the reprisal executions of O'Connor and the others.

Greater precautions have been taken to guard the lives of Free State officials and government property.

The Free State government policy was announced as follows by William T. Cosgrave, of the Dail Eireann:

"There is only one way to crush the conspiracy of assassination. That is by striking terror into the hearts of the conspirators."

Details of the executions leaked out today. The firing squad was composed mostly of young soldiers, some of whom were so nervous their aim was bad. Liam Mellowes was not killed at the first volley and a second had to be fired.

"Tears Of Diamonds" Attract Paris Crowd

PARIS, Dec. 12—Tears of diamonds caused a crowd to gather about a strange couple from the Far East strolling down the Avenue de l'Opera the other day. The man wore curious blue designs traced upon his face and his better half two sparkling diamonds which seemed to be incrusted in her brownish skin just below the eyes. "They make me think of tears which do not wish to flow," said one passerby.

HONEYMOON VOYAGE MADE AROUND GLOBE ON 98 FOOT CRAFT

NEW YORK, Dec. 11—The first cruise around the world on a motorboat ended at 11 a. m. today when the 98-foot yacht "Speedjacks", carrying Mr. and Mrs. Albert Gowen, Jr., of Chicago, docked in the East river.

The boat left New York sixteen months ago and followed the equator. Part of its crew deserted, it was wrecked in the south seas and it fought storms that finished larger crafts. The trip, it is estimated, cost $1,000,000, of which $100,000 went for gasoline. The voyage was the Gowens' honeymoon trip.

"Oh! what a relief it is to get back," sighed Mrs. Gowan as she relaxed in the trim cabin. "No motor boat has ever circumnavigated the earth before and I don't believe that another ever will, for no man is crazy enough to undertake such a trip. But now that it is over, I don't regret it."

And Mrs. Gowen told the tales of 16 months of buffeting huge waves against which the frail little craft was like a straw, of scenes visited in little corners of the world, of dreamlands in the south seas, of head hunters and cannibals and south sea island belles.

"We started out from New York with a crew of seven Americans and returned with an international crew," she said. "We now have one Chinaman, one Russian, a Frenchman, a Scotchman, and an Australian and two Americans who stuck thru with us. Others deserted and we had to pick up our crew in all sorts of odd places around the world."

Music Can Do Much To Quiet Ireland, Message of Famed Opera Singer

DUBLIN, Dec. 12—"Sing, don't shout!"

This was the advice given to Irishmen by Madame Tetrazzini, famous opera singer, when she visited here recently.

"I think it is a great pity Ireland should be disturbed as it is," she said in an interview, "but it is an internal quarrel, and I hope Irishmen will soon all be friends and the present trouble will pass like all squabbles do in sensible families. A love and understanding of music can do much to restore happiness and remove discord amongst the people."

John McCormack, she says, is the greatest singer in the world.

GUEST AT WYOMING JAIL GETS HIS CLOTHES ON BACKWARD AFTER BATH

SHERIDAN, Wyo., Dec. 12—"Mr. No-First-Name Jusolayvitch"—was the name he gave the officers—created a new problem for Sheridan officials when he presented himself at the local jail and asked for a bed and declined to leave the cell the following morning. He said he liked the surroundings too well.

It required three husky deputies to introduce Jusolayvitch to a bath tub, and when the deputies went to his cell after the immersion they discovered him "dressed backwards." At least he had his trousers on the wrong way, and in explaining his predicament he declared he had "sorta got outta the habit, since I ain't pulled 'em off before for fifteen months."

BARUCH OFFERS CREDITS SYSTEM TO FARM BUREAU

CHICAGO, Dec. 12—Definite suggestions for a new finance system for rural credits were made in a speech before the American Farm Bureau Federation here Monday by Bernard M. Baruch, New York financier.

Increased volumes of credit should be assured for:

1. The more orderly marketing of crops.
2. For the purpose of raising and marketing cattle, and
3. For productive purposes, Baruch pointed out.

These may be attained thru a central agency, with regional loan institutions, he said.

The weakness of rural financing has caused the farmer "to absorb much, if not most, of the losses of maladjustment and readjustment," Baruch declared.

Millions of good farmers on good land and with good crops are actually ruining their business thru no fault of their own, or the mischance of a loss that spells ruin if continued.

The purchasing price of farm products, he pointed out, is only 64 cents on the dollar, compared to 1913.

Co-operative marketing, better transportation facilities and wider foreign markets should be aimed at by the Farm Bureau Federation, he said.

"The matter of credit is basic and primary," he continued.

Senator Underwood, Democrat, Alabama objected to immediate consideration.

DOPE SMUGGLER QUEEN JAILED IN BUTTE

Mrs. J. C. Scott Believed To Be "Brains" Of Nationwide Gang Of Professional Crocks

PLEADS GUILTY TO CHARGE

Stole Automobiles, Smuggled Booze and Chinese Over Border

BUTTE, Mont., Dec. 12—On her plea of guilty, in Seattle, Wash., to a charge of automobile thievery, preferred by the Federal government, following her arrest in this city by agents of the department of justice, Mrs. J. C Scott, who was known throughout the northwest as "Queen of Dope Smugglers," has been committed to the Federal prison on McNeil's island, to serve a sentence of 18 months, according to word received by Butte authorities.

Mrs. Scott is said by department of justice officials to have been the "brains" of a nationwide gang of automobile thieves, "dope runners" and smugglers of Chinese.

She is also alleged to have been connected with a ring of crooks who became involved in the killing of a customs officer on the Mexican border.

At the time of her arrest in Butte officers confiscated a large touring car, with a South Dakota license, which is declared by officers to have been used on many occasions in running whiskey and dope across the Canadian border into Montana.

The career of Mrs. Scott, as described by department of justice officials in Butte, reads more like a page from an adventurous tale of fiction than a story from real life. She first came to the notice of the United Ctates government when she became implicated with a band of automobile thieves working in California. Machine after machine disappeared from southern cities to be found later in some northern or western state. Invariably the persons found with the missing machines exhibited bills of sale and asserted they had bought the car in good faith from a woman. This woman is believed to have been Mrs. Scott.

The "automobile gang," according to officers, at times turned their talents to a more profitable though more dangerous occupation. It is said that hundreds of Chinese were smuggled over the Mexican border through the connivance of Mrs. Scott and her companions. For their human freight the smugglers received an average of $100 per head, and frequently they interspersed their smuggling of Orientals with the transporting of large consignments of narcotics that netted them many thousands of dollars. It is said that Mrs. Scott at one time was directing four large cars in their illicit traffic across the international border.

After months of work on the part of agents of the department of justice the entire gang, with the exception of Mrs. Scott, was apprehended. She was finally trailed to Montana and arrested in this city. She is said to have admitted to arresting officers her connection with many California automobile thefts.

Famous Old Recipe for Cough Syrup

Easily and cheaply made at home, but it beats them all for quick results.

Thousands of housewives have found that they can save two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, by using this well-known old recipe for making cough syrup. It is simple and cheap but it has no equal for prompt results. It takes right hold of a cough and gives immediate relief, usually stopping an ordinary cough in 24 hours or less.

Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist, pour it into a pint bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, keeps perfectly, and lasts a family a long time.

It's truly astonishing how quickly it acts, penetrating through every air passage of the throat and lungs—loosens and raises the phlegm, soothes and heals the membranes, and gradually but surely the annoying throat tickle and dreaded cough disappear entirely. Nothing better for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, hoarseness or bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract known the world over for its healing effect on membranes.

Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

BACK FEEL LAME SORE AND ACHY?

Are you lame every morning? Do you drag through the day with a steady, nagging backache—evening find you "all played out?" Probably your kidneys are to blame. RED IDEAS APPLIED TO FAMILY NO GOOD

Chinese Youth, Converted To Bolshevism, Uses Axe On His Father

By THOMAS MELOY.
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

PEKING, Dec. 12. — Bolshevism is the true doctrine of equality, thot young Li, a student in the National University, and when his father failed to appreciate it, seized an axe to prove his point. Mr. Li, Sr., is now in the hospital, his skull dangerously cut, while his son meditates in a small cell over the inexplicable difference between theory and practice. From all over China the wise men and scholars have protested over what they believe to be a flagrant example of the "fruits" of bolshevik teaching. The latter, they declare, is contrary to the entire philosophy of Chinese family life.

The case of Li was particularly unfortunate, as the boy had had a good school record and looked forward to a bright professional career. He is just twenty years old. His father was a librarian in the Bureau of Records and respected for his scholarly attainments. According to the court records the details are as follows:

"Li Yuyan has been heavily imbued with Bolsheviki propaganda, which demands an equal division of the family properties with his father. Furthermore, Li says that in accordance with the new teaching his father has no parental right to restrict his actions and he insists on living separately from his parents.

"Upon his father declining to accept his Bolsheviki arguments, which are against Chinese custom and teaching, Li Yuan picked up an axe with intention of compelling his father to yield to his demands by force. But in his hurry he severely hurt his father on the head. The old man is now unconscious and his life in doubt."

The Soviet Mission in Peking disclaim responsibility.

RISKS BROKEN BACK TO BE ON WINNING FOOTBALL TEAM

WALLA WALLA, Wash., Dec. 12—Taking a chance with one's spinal column is risky business just for the sake of playing football. But this is just what Lawrence Jacky, fullback and captain of the Walla Walla High school eleven, did this season—and "he got away with it."

The local high school eleven finished the season Thanksgiving day by defeating the Gonzaga high school team, of Spokane, 39 to 0, and thereby earning the right to clash with Waite High school, of Toledo, O., for an intersectional contest here on Christmas day, if that eleven decides to come west. Jacky finished the game at his position and thereby completed a record of nine games without ever having been taken out. This in spite of the fact that last year he was forced to retire from the game early in the season with two of his vertebrae out of place and one split lengthwise.

But Jacky was systematic about the care of himself. He devoted himself to the idea of getting well so that he could help his team win a championship the next year.

With the best of medical and home care he was "in shape" this fall. Physicians and his friends assured him he was taking a big chance, but Jacky said: "It is my last year in high school and I want to play on that team, for it's going to be a winner." He was right; it was. Scores of 45 to 7 against Boise, Idaho, High school; 14 to 2 against the celebrated Everett, Wash., eleven, and of 15 to 0 against North Central High school, of Spokane, winners over Lewis and Clark High school, of that city, attest to this fact.

Jacky says his spinal column is now as strong as it ever was and that he intends to play football when he goes to college. Several college coaches who have been watching his line-plunging have said they hope so.

For use in noisy places a telephone transmitter has been invented that is held against the throat instead of in front of the lips eliminating outside sounds from the wire.

EDITOR ON TRIAL FOR MURDER FREED

DURANGO, Colo., Dec. 11—Rod S. Day, editor of the Durango Democrat, today was freed of a charge of murder for the killing of Wilhelm L. Wood, editor of the Durango Herald.

A jury returned a verdict of not guilty after deliberating nearly 24 hours.

WOMAN KILLED BY INTERURBAN CAR

CHICAGO, Dec. 11—An unidentified woman was instantly killed today when she jumped or fell from a station platform in front of a speeding interurban train. She was hurled twenty feet and picked up dead.

Hundreds of workers waiting on the platform saw the woman killed.

Pays $2,000 For Two Blooded Swiss Goats

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Dec. 11 — Burns Lyman Smith, Syracuse multi-millionaire, has got the Swiss's goats.

They cost him $1,000 apiece and they're the first Swiss milk goats to be introduced in these parts. The breeding of the animals will be attempted on Smith's Oswegatchie river preserve.

Appropriation Bill Is Reported To The House

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11. — Appropriations of $6,643,556 for the department of labor and $19,545 for the department of commerce for the fiscal year 1923-24 were carried in a bill reported to the house today.

The labor appropriation is $304,800 less than that for the current year and the commerce appropriation is $380,207 in excess of the existing allowance.

PEOPLE OVER FORTY

People aged forty or over are less able to resist the attacks of colds, grippe, influenza or pneumonia than young people. Their vital force lacks the powerful resistance of youth. Constipated bowels, sour stomach, indigestion, biliousness and weak kidneys all tend to lower the physical resistance. Millions of people now use Bulgarian Herb Tea to keep the bowels open and improve the blood. Bulgarian Herb Tea taken steaming hot will help break up a cold quickly. Physicians and druggists everywhere recommend it.

EYES THAT ARE ASTIGMATIC

Astigmatism is caused by the eyeball being faulty in curvature. Nature made the mistake, but nature will never correct it. A Subsidy For Certain Banks

EXEMPTION from taxation is, in effect, a subsidy from the public treasury. It is justified only when some public purpose is to be served. It certainly cannot be defended when it is merely a means of private profit. Yet, as Secretary Mellon points out in the annual report of the Treasury Department, congress has conferred this privilege upon one class of banking institutions which are conducted for private profit.

The collapse of farm prices at the beginning of the late period of depression was so great as to be a national menace, and the national government was impelled to exert itself to relieve the farmers. Much of what was done was beneficial and entirely justified, but in the haste more questionable practices were allowed.

Government aid was extended in three ways. First of all, the War Finance Corporation was revived, and it made loans and advances which aggregated $430,000,000 in thirty-seven states. The effect of these agricultural loans was tonic. Farm prices were restored to more reasonable levels. Then the long-discussed system of land credits was developed thru two banking agencies—the federal land banks and the joint stock land banks. The federal land banks are mutual associations formed and regulated under national authority. The joint stock land banks are private, profit-making institutions whose business happens to be lending money to farmers. The bonds of both the federal land banks and the joint stock land banks and the joint stock land banks are tax free.

Secretary Mellon draws attention to the inequitable situation which has resulted. Because of the peril involved the administration has ceased to exempt its own new securities from taxation. Yet the joint stock land banks, which are private business agencies, enjoy this privilege. Tax exemption gives their securities an additional value, which redounds to the benefit of investors rather than of farmers who borrow money on their land.

The entire practice of exempting securities from taxation is considered by many to be inequitable and uneconomic and if so it ought to be ended as quickly as possible. While a constitutional amendment is necessary to bring the states and other local governmental units in line, congress itself has the authority to stop the issuance of tax-free bonds by the joint stock land banks. This ought to be done without delay.

The President's Speech

PRESIDENT HARDING'S belated message to congress was in some respects a sensible speech, but in no way was it a call to action. His auditors realized this, as their comments quaintly prove.

Thus Senator Norris, the progressive Republican of Nebraska, observed: "The President's message was beautiful . . . I doubt if he suggested any remedies." And another Republican, Senator Weller of Maryland, was almost as blunt when he said: "The President made some admirable suggestions. I don't know whether the legislative jam will let us put them into effect. Of course the ship subsidy and the appropriations will occupy most of our attention in this congress."

The message was a statement of views, and not recommendations for legislation which Mr. Harding expects to see enacted. It was accordingly intended for its effect upon public opinnion rather than upon the present congress. If the intimations from the Capitol are correct the matters discussed by the President must be taken up by another congress, whose first regular session will be begun in December of next year. Before that body convenes another presidential message will have been prepared.

Nevertheless the opinions of a President upon affairs of state are always important, and Mr. Harding's utterances are no exception to the rule. His opinion, that an old order perished with the war and that it is not to be retrieved, is certainly significant in his office, since so much of the recent industrial order may be fairly attributed to those who like Mr. Harding, would restore the good old days of 1914 earlier.

The most ailed discussion concerned the railroads. Senator Cumr , chairman of the Senate Interstate Commerce Commission, has indicated that railroad legislation is impracticable at this session, and consequently no immediate action is probable. Still the President drew attention to conditions which sooner or later must be acknowledged upon the statute books.

Mr. Harding observed that the United States Railroad Labor Board had failed. It is the truth, and yet the President must accept some of the blame for what has occurred, since the inability of the board became obvious only when the unionists were convinced that it was hopelessly prejudiced against them. The character of Mr. Harding's appointments to the board has been a prime factor in its bankruptcy.

A malign fate seems to have followed federal attempts to create an effectual industrial court for the railroads and their employes. Since Grover Cleveland's first term successive efforts have been made, but except for the labor division of the United States railroad administration none has succeeded.

The suggestions made by Mr. Harding for the establishment of the labor board as a section of the Interstate Commerce Commission is reasonable, since rates and wages are parts of a single problem. His support of the plan to pool railroad cars and to develop greater transportation unity is valuable. Still it is interesting to observe that while the President is convinced that the national welfare demands that the government exercise most of the rights which normally are the attribute of private management, he continues to be opposed to governmental operation. Like many others he accepts the fact while he opposes the name.

His sympathetic reference to the extension of agricultural credits is a measure of the strength of the farmers at Washington. Mr. Harding knows industrial Ohio more intimately than rural Kansas, but he understands election figures even tho he would prefer to give the new congress time to cool off. His advice on the subject of prohibition is not less sound. Fortunately he is in a position to act on it, since he controls the appointment of enforcement officers.

Finally the two constitutional amendments which he recommends in order to abolish child labor and to end the practice of issuing tax-free securities are worthy of consideration as also is his expression of a desire not to escape the acceptance of America's responsibilities in the family of nations. But here also action is the test of sincerity, and nothing is expected of congress at this session.

New York Day-by-Day

By O. O McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Dec 12—The pro here [illegible] closed session l weekenders have reach and there [illegible] ed the end of the trail. Winter is the small [illegible] That must exist on scant fare until spring comes again.

Only a city like New York nourishes this strange type of boudoir grafter. There are thousand of them—women without incomes who drift from one country home to another unbidden. Usually they are cultured creatures whose fortunes went on the rocks.

One of the most persistent at one time owned a marble town house on the avenue which had a drawing room suite of furniture belonging to Napoleon. Good birth and good breeding are hers but she is penniless. She is "cold shouldered" among the elite but welcomed by the noveau riche.

She, like her innumerable sisters, is able to give valuable pointers on managing servants and to show how to cater in polite circles. They are adept in conversation and able to keep all visitors talking. In this way they pay for their keep.

There is a lower strata of professional week enders who offer nothing—save perhaps a few snappy epigrams from motley books. They are brazen in inviting themselves to homes where social barriers would ordinarily bar them.

Calloused to rebuffs, they crash into drawing rooms with cool indifference to lifted eye-brows. After all, ladies must live. At fashionable Southampton last season a matron closed her home in midseason. She confided that she had fourteen house guests. Only five of them had been invited.

The biggest scandal New York has known in years is raging. It concerns the amours of a dusky belle of a midnight dance resort. The tale is told that an admirer of the mulatto girl was so shocked at the refusal of a Park-ave apartment house to give here a suite of rooms that he purchased the entire building and the young lady is ensconced there in queely splendor. She is dripping with diamonds and rides around in a Rolls-Royce. A few years ago she was a housemaid in the home of a Harlem undertaker.

A group of factory girls near Center Market have solved the problem of reducing and at the same time saving luncheon money. All of them weighed more than 150 pounds. They stopped eating lunch and went to a pickle store in the neighborhood where they invested a few cents for a pickle and made their meal off that.

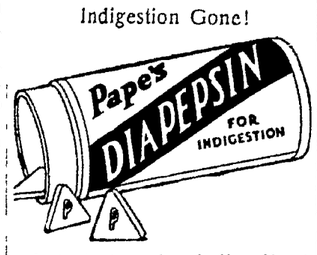

A feverish search for treasure is being conducted in the bed of the East River. It is being financed by a group of Broadwayites who are eternally seeking new excitement. In 1780 the British frigate Hussar, carrying $2,500,000 in gold consigned to the royal forces on this continent, struck a rock opposite the upper end of Randalls Island and sank about a hundred yards from shore. Cafe proprietors are hoping that the treasurer will be retrieved. It would toss a little jazz into the waning life of Flash Alley.

The old Union League Club on Fifth Avenue is now being torn down. A department store from the Herald Square district is to take its place. It was a gloomy old place and the window loungers seemed little interested in the flashing parade that went by.

TEN YEARS AGO TODAY
From The Tribune Files

Mrs. Samuel Scott, age 75, died at her home in New Castle, Wednesday morning, at ½ 30 o'clock, after an illness extending over the past two years.

Lester Hamilton narrowly escaped being run down by the Wheeling train, Wednesday afternoon, at the crossing at Seventh-st. when he failed to see the approach of the train, while riding a motorcycle.

Fred Oldham, formerly of this city, but now of Loudonville, was badly burned about the face in an axle factory in that city, Tuesday, according to word received by friends here.

A splendid program has been arranged for the extension school to be held in Warsaw, the week of December 16.

Adam F. Corbitt, four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Corbitt, of Newcomerstown, died at the family home Wednesday afternoon, at 3:30 o'clock, from a sudden attack of spasmodic croup.

After a two years illness from Bright's disease, Mrs. D. Whiteus age 61 died at her home in Roscoe, Wednesday morning, at 7 o'clock.

The addition to the Rex File and Saw company plant, of Newcomerstown, which will double the capacity of the plant, is almost completed.

In compliment to Miss Helen Miskimen, whose marriage to John Robinson, of Marion, formerly of Newcomerstown, will take place during the holiday season, the Misses Mary, Elizabeth and Ella Williams will entertain with an evening party, Thursday at their home in Cambridge-st.

On December 27, the Ohio chapters of Alpha Pi fraternity will enjoy an inter-chapter dance at Mans field.

PEOPLE'S FORUM

THE MASTER TEACHER

Editor The Tribune:

A humble learner I would be,
And at the Master's feet.
My quest there oft repeat
For grace of spontaneity.

What a charm to sermon, to oration, to lecture, to speech of any kind is spontaneity.

With breathless rapture I used to listen to Beecher, to Talmage, and to "Old Bill Gibson." I had a teacher once who had "the gift of gab," but he always talked to the point and stopped when he had reached it.

At collage we had a literary society and gave prizes for the best extemporaneous speeches.

Lowry could beat us all and his fine accomplishment carried him to the senate and won for him wealth and fame as a lawyer.

Out of the fulness of the heart the mouth speaketh.

Therein lies the secret of successful public speaking. Fill the mind with worth-while thoughts, fill the heart with a noble purpose, then a flash of enthusiasm and you have it.

It is a fine accomplishment, an art closely akin to the finest of all arts. The Master Teacher knew it well. He trusted to the spontaneity of his own nature. He told his disciples to fill themselves full of the work and of the spirit and then go forth in faith and without anxiety and it would be given what they should say. The best speakers are not pinned to a manuscript. The best teachers are not nosing a textbook while they teach. "I can not hear what you say Because of what you are." How often do we find this to be true. Character speaks louder than words.

Spontaniety shines out thru face, thru gesture, thru dress, thru manner, as well as thru words.

"Every little movement
Has a meaning all its own."
Spirit will tell, and in the end spirit will be the judge.

The informational teacher has his place, but it is the inspirational teacher who moves and shapes the world.

Spontaneity, like enthusiasm, is born of the spirit and is able to move even rocks and stones.

I may add also that spontaneity is the child of inspiration and inspiration is born of the gods.

Inspiration! Do you have it?
Can you feel it working,—
Coming on you in the night?
Arise and gird yourself for battle,
Put off dreaming, put off shirking,
Begin the fray by candle light!

CHRISTMAS AND TAXES

The calendar informs me that Christmas is at hand; the Christmas spirit warms me, emotion fine and bland; I'd like to load a wagon with gifts for all my kin, for one a silver flagon, for one a car of tin; I'd like to go kershopping in streets ablaze with light, and, never more gestopping, buy everything in sight. It's Christmas! And thereafter the tax collector comes, and he, with fiendish laughter, demands outrageous sums. The surtax and the normal, with an exemption small; on blanks severe and formal I have to write it all. And how can man buy Grannie a new and flossy wig, or give to little Annie a waxen thingumjig; how can he give Aunt Hilda a pair of roller skates, or offer Aunt Matilda some sculptured paperweights, when seeing in the distance the tax collector come, to render his existence a sorry thing and glum? Where once I spent a dollar at Merry Christmas time, I now rear up and holler at letting loose a dime; I view the tax collector, and speak the thoughts I feel, until the parish rector rebukes me for my spiel. The tax collector's drilling, he's evermore in view, with his fierce blanks he's killing the joys our lives once knew.

JURORS WARNED OF IMPENDING CLASH

NEW YORK, Dec. 12. — Warnings of a Papal conspiracy to capture and rule the United States and of an uprising of Protestants to drive every alien papist from our shores, were contained in an anonymous circular letter received today by every member of the December special and the regular grand jury which is investigating the Ku Klux Klan.

Warning was mimeographed upon plain stationery. It was headed:

"KEEP AMERICA PROTESTANT."

There was nothing about the letters to indicate by whom they had been mailed.

SOCIETY

Call Phone 205

Softly lighted red candles, in holders entwined with ferns, a small Christmas tree, together with other decorations suggestive of the holiday season were effectively used thruout the home of Mrs. H. E. Cox, 1020 Walnut-st, Monday evening, for the annual Christmas party of the Home Study club.

An especially entertaining program was arranged for the meeting. Mrs. Ada Gault told a delightful story, "Christmas — the Past, Present and Future,' which preceded Mrs. Frank Foster's selected Christmas story, told in a most interesting manner. Mrs. Harry Kerlin sang very sweetly, "Oh Holy Night Divine," followed by Miss Olga Shauweker's "Origin of the White Christmas," a charming legend. Mrs. Jesse Grandstaff, pianist of ability, delighted the guests with a selection, "Christmas Bells." The entire club membership and guests present joined in singing favorite Christmas carols, which concluded the program.

Mrs. W. H. Compton, president of the Coshocton Federation of Woman's clubs, presented the new local community service work, as well as other federation news of importance.

Delicious refreshments were served by the hostesses who were: Mrs. Cox, Mrs. Frank Mulligan, Mrs. F. K. Dokkenwadel, Mrs. Ada Gault, Mrs. Josephine Lawrence. Mrs. Charles Magness, Mrs. Rembrandt Rowe, Mrs. L. T. Judd, Mrs. C. B. Meade, Mrs. Edward Lenhart, Mrs. Frank Foster, Miss Alice Judd and Miss Sophia Foster. In addition to the hostesses and other club members, the invited guests were: Mrs. W. H. Compton, Mrs. W. M. Merrell, Mrs. Edward Jacobs, Mrs. E. M. Patterson, Mrs. William Champanois, Mrs. Mattie Barnes, Mrs. I. D. Webner, Mrs. Z. S. Herrington, Mrs. Jennie McBride, Mrs. John McNary, Mrs. H. S. Rinehart, Miss Emma Manner, Miss Ruth Lawrence and Miss Dorothy Barnes.

Best winter wreathes for cemetery use at moderate prices. Clary Bros., the Florists.

Miss Mary Duncan delighted the members of the New Century club, which met Monday evening with Miss Mary Rue, 646 Chestnut-st, with a number of poems suggestive of the Yuletide season. Mrs. Leila Wilson, in her pleasing manner, gave a splendid reading of "The Spirit in the House."

During the business routine, it was decided to hold the next meeting, January 8, with Mrs. D. O. Thompson, rather than January 1, as calendared.

Do you know the best place to buy your shoes is at D. O. Thompson's. Dress shoes at $3.98, worth $5.50, shoes worth $6.00 for $4.75, in black or dark tan. Every pair sold with a guarantee.

The Women's Benefit Association of the Lady Macabees will enjoy a Christmas party at the lodge rooms, Monday evening, December 18, following the regular review at 7 o'clock.

Each member is requested to bring a gift for exchange. Later in the evening an entertaining program will be given and Santa Claus will provide treats for the members.

You can save money on your suit or overcoat if you buy at D. O. Thompson's. Suits, all wool at $14.75, $16.50, $20.00. Come in and let us show you the big value in suits and overcoats.

The B. Y. P. U. of the West Lafayete Baptist church entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Hall, Friday evening.

Games and contests were enjoyed thruout the evening by 35 members of the society and their guests. Later dainty refreshments were served by the social committee.

We are not giving away our cemetery wreathes but for every dollar you spend with us we give you one dollar's worth of merchandise. Clary Bros., the Florists.

Mrs. L. P. Gallagher, 611 Chestnut-st, went to Dresden, Monday, for a visit in the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Eichelberger.

Three papers of especial interest were read at the bi-monthly meeting of the Historical club, held Monday afternoon at the library.

Mrs. R. M. Love appeared first on the program, using as her subject, "Effects of the Louisiana Purchase," which was followed by Mrs. W. B. Winters' well prepared Christmas story. "The Critics' Drill," was given by Mrs. F. E. Pomerene.

The next meeting will be as calendared, January 2.

You can purchase our winter wreathes at Jay Murphy's Blue Bird, 535 Main-st; phone 516.

In compliment to Mr. and Mrs. Russell Miller, a number of friends and neighbors gathered at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Perkins, Conesville Route 2, Saturday evening, feting them with a miscellaneous shower.

Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Miller, the guests of honor, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Wright, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Smailes, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. Foster Wright, Mr. and Mrs. Orville Smailes, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Wright, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Tharp, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rusk, Mrs. Mollie Pigman, Miss Mildred Smailes, Miss Fern Pigman, Miss Virginia Wright, Miss Esther Smailes, Miss Edna Perkins, Miss Mae Thomas, Miss Emily Perkins, Miss Garnet Wright, Miss Fannie Wright, Joshua Howell, John Perkins, Robert Perkins, George Haines, Alphonso Howell, Joseph Smailes, Alfred Perkins, Roy Smailes, Earl Smailes, Russell Cunningham, Cyrus McCoy, Otto Richardson, Harold Bessi, Carl McCoy, Oscar Bessi, Harvey Phillips, Beryl Dickerson, Donald Wright, Parker Thomar, Harold Marshall, Quincy Meek and Loraine and Lowell Smailes.

Many useful presents were received by the bridal couple.

Miss Edna Hay, 304 south Fourth-st, was hostess to the members in the Chautauqua Cricle, Monday evening, at her home, for the regular calendared meeting.

Mrs. Edmund Cone gave a splendid Christmas reading from Washington Irving's "Sketch of an English Christmas." Especially interesting conversations on "Current Events in England," and "Current Events in the Rest of the World," were given respectively by Miss Louise McClure and Mrs. J. D. Lower. Miss Dorothy Davis concluded the program with an excellent paper, "England of Our Forefathers."

The annual Christmas club party will be held Monday evening, December 18, at 7:30 o'clock promptly, with Mrs. Jesse Rice, Walnut-st.

Buy your Christmas hose at D. O. Thompson's. For work we offer them at 9c, 15c, 20c. Fine dress hose in cotton, lyle, wool or silk at 7c, 10c, 15c, 20c, 25c up to $1.50.

WANAMAKER WON

to some advertising men in 1916, Mr. Wanamaker said:

"Our little allowance of advertising went to daily newspapers as it does nearly altogether today, because if I have a monument for discovering anything, it will be for finding out that the only advertising of direct and instant benefit to both merchant and customer is in the daily newspapers.

"All others are vanity and vexation of spirit. To have learned this fact has greatly helped enthusiasm tho often there has been discomfort in saying so publicly and in breaking away from posters, leaflets and weeklies."

From the beginning of his business to the day of his death, John Wanamaker was largely his own advertising manager, for many years he surrounded himself with the best writers and brains he could buy, but never did he leave off his own personal touch from anything that was written. I believe he was the first advertiser to use full pages in the newspapers and I am sure he was the first to recognize and insist on the exact truth in advertising.

In his nearly sixty years as an active merchant he has spent many millions of dollars in the newspapers, particularly in New York and Philadelphia and has made his advertising the model that has been copied by every storekeeper in the United States.

Happily Mr. Wanamaker's surviving son, Col. Rodman Wanamaker, inherited his father's genius and the great work so well done will, I am sure, go forward to great achievement.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Dec. 12.— The respect in which John Wanamaker was held is perhaps best exemplified by today's advertisement of the rival department store firm of Gimble Bros.

The advertisement, black bordered, reads:

"We stand with uncovered head at the passing of that eminent Philadelphian, John Wanamaker, whose vision and ideals squared business with right and who gave America it's conception of large business done for the public weal."

EX KAISER

zollern. She broke off the engagement after "the kaiser camarilla" (as Wilhelm's entourage at Doorn is now known), had attacked her for two reasons:

First. While she belonged to the so-called "radel" which is the oldest and proudest aristocracy in the empire—her forbears were knights in Brandenburg long before the advent of the Hohenzollerns—she is not of royal blood; therefore it would have been a messalliance if the former kaiser had ever been returned to the German throne.

Secondly. The members of the Kaiser camarilla disapproved of any re-marriage, preferring to keep the exiled monarch under their own sway without interference from a wife who might look into their cards.

Strange as it may seem, these two women—Frau Von Rochow, who lost, and Princess Hermine, of Reuss, who won in the game of love—have one common emotion and uttered it to me in almost identical words—it is the most bitter undying hatred against the members of the former kaiser's entourage at the house of Doorn.

Right here it should be said that Frau Von Rochow has not the slightest bit of jealousy or envy towards the woman who won and was led to the altar. On the contrary she always speaks of Princess Hermine (now known in the Hohenzollern household as Kaiserin Hermine) in the kindest and most cordial terms. Her grievance lies elsewhere.

Someone once said that "man's meaness may turn a woman into a tigress." Frau Von Rochow has not reached that stage, but she had arrived at the point where she wants satisfaction from her calumniators. Today she took the first legal step. The affair now threatens to branch out into a public scandal.

The facts of this story have been in the correspondent's possession for three months, but he was unable to publish them because of the "other woman."

While she poured out her soul and told the story of her romance in all its intimate details—sometimes amid tears—Frau Von Rochow was absolutely loyal to the former kaiser and begged the writer not to paint him in his true light, namely: as a coward and a cad, who, after imploring her on his knees to marry him and finally winning her consent with the plea that he could not live without her, listened to the whispers of the camarilla. These whispers appealed to his vanity, as "emperor" and they persuaded the former war lord to throw over his affianced sweetheart in cold blood after having details of the wedding plans prepared for the German press.

Then the ex-kaiser blamed it upon his aides. But that was only the first drop of Frau Von Rochow's cup of bitterness and suffering. After that followed a systematic campaign slighting and discrediting her. For, in the meantime Princess Hermine had appeared upon the scene. With the curiosity which is the prerogative of a bride-to-be, Hermine began to ask questions regarding Wilhelm's relations with Frau Von Rochow, whose two extended visits to Doorn were common knowledge.

It was then that the campaign of intrigue and calumny was driven into Frau Rochow's heart by a printed story—that Gabriele had been only the housekeeper at Doorn. This story stands today unchallenged and undenied by the entourage and the ex-kaiser himself.

When the correspondent first talked with Gabriele she waved off the slightest suspicion. This was an impartial alibi for the intended wife—for Hermine had not yet married Wilhelm Hohenzollern when this statement was made.

But even then doubt nagged at Frau Rochow's heart. She waited patiently for one slight gesture from Doorn which would put a stop to the vicious version that she, who had been Wilhelm's intimate friend for 20 years and who, for six months had been his solemnly bethrothed fiancee, was merely a housekeeper at Doorn.

Not a single word has come from Wilhelm to set her straight in the social stratum where the very word household means social death.

Instead Wilhelm has written her many letters and only a week or so ago sent her some rare plants from his Doorn botanical gardens. His letters were full of bombastic self eulogy and empty persiflage or intimate observations regarding his new wife.

Only a few days prior to his wedding, the former kaiser wrote to Frau Von Rochow commenting up on "the alabaster skin of Hermine's arms," which, he said "remind me of your own."

In the meantime the lie has lived on with Wilhelm hiding from pertinent questions from Hermine behind this falsehood as a useful alibi.

That this act of faithlessness is eating away the heart and health of the woman who was willing to sacrifice everything for him, does not seem to trouble Wilhelm's sleep, according to all reports from Doorn. Incidentally, all the time Gabriele was living at Doorn she wore the same serpentine bracelet that now adorns the "alabaster arm" of the former Princess Hermine—Hermine being the third woman to wear it as it originally belonged to the late kaiserin, who died in April, 1921.

Frau Von Rochow has broken down under the strain. Her faith is shattered. Friends declare that Gabriele with aching heart has finally come to see Wilhelm in his true light. Consequently this bit of melodrama is given to the world because it appears to shed more light upon the personality and character of the former war lord, than any biography or memoirs yet printed.

JOHN WANAMAKER

ger, of Malinville, Pa.

Until he was fourteen John Wanamaker attended the Landreth public school, then entered the employment of a local publishing house, at a salary of $1.25 a week. A short time later the family removed to Indiana, but in 1856 returned to Philadelphia, the boy securing a better position in a clothing store, where he at once impressed the owner with his ability.

In 1858 after a brief trip for his health to Minnesota, he returned to Philadelphia as the first paid secretary of the Y. M. C. A., then in its formative period.

When the Civil War broke out he was among the first to volunteer, but was rejected because of his lungs. Despite this he organized the "Christian Commission," which became one of the great bodies for extending aid to the sick and wounded of both sides.

The day Fort Sumter was bombarded by the Confederates saw his first business enterprise—a small clothing store, in partnership with Nathan Brown, whose sister he had married. The first day's sales amounted to $24.67!

The one-price system, as distinct from the then prevailing method of haggling over an article, was inaugurated by Mr. Wanamaker, who also made a departure from the custom of the day by spending as much as he could spare on newspaper advertising.

From humble beginnings the clothing store soon became one of the largest retail establishments of its kind in the country.

Staid business men of Philadelphia were astounded in 1875 to hear that Mr. Wanamaker had purchased from the Pennsylvania railroad its freight station at Thirteenth and Market streets. The property, comprising an entire city block, brot $500,000. Before going ahead with his own undertakings, Mr. Wanamaker gave the use of the building free to the evangelistic campaign of Moody and Sankey.

The present monster department store was dedicated December 30, 1911, by President Taft, fully 30,000 persons being present at the ceremony. At the same time the French government awarded him the Cross of the Legion of Honor.

Politically, Mr. Wanamaker led an active life, conducting a memorable campaign against Tammany Hall in New York during the Harrison Presidential campaign and becoming Postmaster-General. During his incumbency he supervised the development of the Pacific coastal mail service and did much to eliminate Sunday work among postal employes.

In Pennsylvania he ran for Senator and Governor, much against his personal desires.

In religious work he has perhaps attained his greatest fame as founder of Bethany Sunday School, which boasts one of the largest memberships in the country. Addresses by Mr. Wanamaker have always been a feature of service there which have attracted many visitors to Philadelphia. Among his many charitable works are his Men's Friendly Inn for drunkards who desire to reform, the Bethany Brotherhood House, a recreation centre, and his schools for his employes.

Asked the motto of his life, Mr. Wanamaker once replied: "Thinking, toiling, trying—these will spell success in any undertaking."

The merchant prince was educated in the public schools, later continuing at his studies until he received his degree from Howard University, Ursinus college and the University of Pennsylvania.

He started to work at a very early age, running errands for a book store when he was 14. He turned to the clothing business first as a retail salesman for a clothing concern where he gathered that insight into the needs of patrons that later made him one of the shrewdest observers of customers' demands in the country.

In 1861 in joint partnership with Nathan Brown, he established the clothing house of Wanamaker & Brown. As his business increased he branched out and established a department store in Philadelphia and another in New York. The New York store he bought outright from A. T. Stewart, former owner. His large interests in due time, led him to take an active interest in the financial world. He organized and directed the Merchants Bank as well as acted as one of the directors of the Philadelphia & Reading R. R.

In politics he was an Independent Republican, taking an active and leading part in the deliberations and work of his chosen party.

Thruout his whole career he was strongly opposed to and bitterly fought the machine in politics. He was offered the Republican nomination to congress but declined. He also declined the nomination of mayor in Philadelphia.

Between 1889 and 1893, he was persuaded to accept the postmaster generalship of the United States and when President Harrison took office, he accepted a post in the cabinet.

Thruout his whole life he was interested in the religious welfare of his country and particularly the religious institutions in Philadelphia. He was the first elected secretary of the Y. M. C. A. in America.

He was one of the founders of the Christian community during the civil war which by its incessant work was considered as one of the ablest helps the Union had.

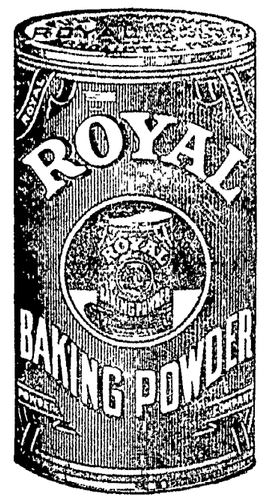

His interests were large, and his philanthrophy almost universal. He was connected with many religious and charitable organizations taking most of his time and a good deal of his money.

DOUBT IF

position because of the constantly repeated charge that the Japanese had secretly given aid to the Chinese bandits in order to make it appear that the presence of Japanese troops was necessary to insure order.

TROUBLE PREDICTED.

Frank admissions were made by British and American business men and consular officials that Tsing-tao had never had such efficient administration in years as was given by the Japanese. In fact, belief was prevalent in some quarters that when the Japanese relinquished control conditions would grow so bad that Japan would have to resume her police duties on Shantung Peninsula to protect foreign interests.

Conditions in Shantung Province are best realized by a train-ride from Tsi-nan-fu, the capital, into the leased territory of Kiao-chau, where is located the great port of Tsing-tao.

Leaving Tsi-nan-fu, one encountered beggars, filth and poor management on all sides. Then the traveler boarded a train on the Shantung Railway, operated under efficient Japanese management, with guards and employes who gave the best of Occidental service.

Tsing-tao two months ago resembled a Dutch coast town. Its buildings, erected by Germans and Japanese, were clean; its harbor front was orderly and well policed.

The roads were kept in excellent repair.

DOUBT CHINESE CONTROL

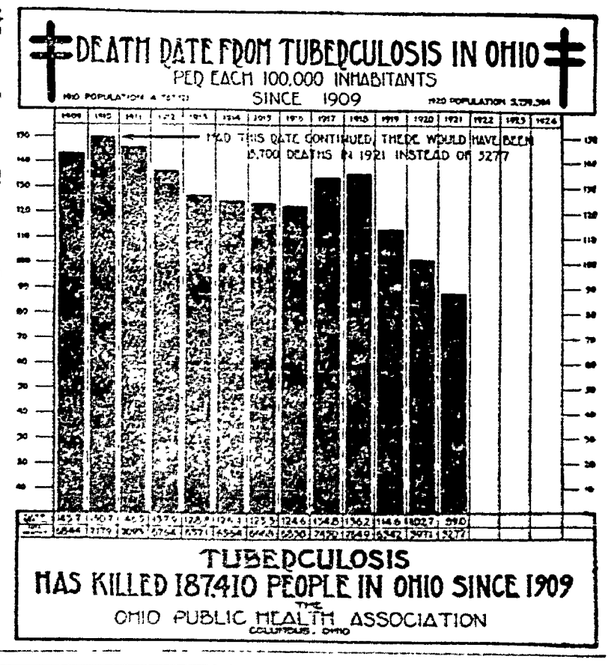

In November British and American business men and consular officials began to take serious thot of the transfer and to wonder if the Chinese would be able to maintain the high and efficient standards set by the Japanese. In connection with pessimistic prophecies the old accusation again was pressed that the Japanese were selling arms to Chinese bandits.

It was fairly well established that Chinese had bot arms, but they were sold, it was said, by Japanese merchants in the regular course of business.

Japan has large interests at Tsi-nan-fu and Tsing-tao, and under the circumstances it would not be surprising if she made diplomatic representations to enable her to police the territory until the Chinese show that they are able to cope with the brigands.

Studebaker

Veterans Perform Like Youngsters

Nine Studebaker Big-Six Touring Cars, with a total of one million miles to their credit, recently participated in an economy-reliability contest conducted by the Studebaker dealer at Los Angeles.

All came through with perfect scores except two—one had dirt in the gasoline pipe, the other required a slight adjustment of brakes.

This is the most convincing demonstration of motor car reliability of which we know.

The run was from Los Angeles to Big Bear Valley and return—239 miles—of which 90 were on steep, rough mountain roads that necessitated stamina in every part. Yet the Big-Sixes reached every checking station on time.

One of these old veterans has piled up the amazing total of 351,000 miles of practically uninterrupted service of two trips daily between Los Angeles and Santa Barbara.

Another has 250,000 miles to its credit, and so on.

No such group of cars was ever before assembled for such a strenuous proof of endurance. Their entry in competition, over one of the most difficult of Southern California's mountain roads, was an expression of confidence of the owners in Studebaker everlasting goodness.

The dependability of the Big-Six Touring Car, its low cost of maintenance, its comfort, fine appearance and complete equipment make it the most desirable seven-passenger car on the market. Its price is way below cars that do not even approach it in value.

The name Studebaker is your assurance of value and satisfaction.

DAILY NEWS LETTER

General News and Gossip from Staff Writers At Home and Abroad

By ROLAND KREBS,

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—A steady source of wonder and interest to the visitor from outside of New York is the theatrical district and its dwellers during off-stage hours Youthful devotees of the drama, who didn't really want to go into the movies anyway, reverently pass the Friars' Club, in 48th street, or the Lambs' manager, in 44th street With eager ears they listen to the conversations of the sidewalk idlers in 47th street and in the areaway behind the Hotel Astor.

The amusing part of it all is that these credulous visitors are the victims of near actors and never-will-be actors, who delight in seeing people gape. The really good artists are too busy to be lolling around in 47th street

To these one-half of one per cent actors George White, of "Scandals" repute, and George M. Cohan are always "Georgie White" and "Georgie Cohan." Lots of democracy in the profession, you know.

Two down-and-outers—women—put a successful actress on the skillet good and proper when they saw her leave the stage door of a 47th street variety theatre. It was an "I knew her when——" conversation from start to finish.

"Why, dearie," said the one, emphasizing her remarks with little [illegible] of a bent wrist, "She ain't got no reason at all to give me the ritz. Two years ago in Toledo she had a opener. Where was I? In the gravy spot m'dear. I done my stuff from beginning to end in pantomime, and my dear it was a Class A knockout And now she [illegible] herself when she gives me the go by [illegible]"

Just what per cent of the attendance at the annual ball of the Actors' Equity Association a made up of the profession would be interesting to know. At the recent 1922 ball the Hotel Astor was jammed. Flasks were flaunted back and forth and the amusement was a bit ribald in spots.

But the actors themselves—Ethel Barrymore, Carl Randall, Cecilie Sorel, the Valentinos, Frances Byrne and Buster Keaton—were the ladies and gentlemen one expects to find at a ball. They try to keep out the riff-raff—tickets are $11 each—but it appears that nearly everyone has $11 these days

The ball is the biggest event of the year to the profession. It got under way at midnight and at dawn was fox trotting along merrily. Every minute contains its individual novelty. The ball is perhaps the most sparkling New York knows.

IF KIDNEYS BOTHER TRY DOSE OF SALTS

Flush the Kidneys at once when Back aches od Bladder bothers

No man or woman who eats lots of meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Too much meat may form uric acid, which clogs the kidney pores so that they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood, then you get sick. Rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders often come from sluggish kidneys

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to help neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus often ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which everyone can take now and then to help keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby often preventing serious kidney complications.

CHICAGO, Dec. 12—Speaking before an audience of farmers and styling himself a "dirt farmer," Georges Clemenceau, war premier of France, made what are expected to be his last formal utterances in the United States in an address before the American Farm Bureau Federation

The farmers' claims adjust themselves well with France's claims, M. Clemenceau said

Again refuting the idea that France is militaristic, this time the "Tiger" pointed to the French farmer as proof.

"If you saw him, you would understand why the French people cannot be destroyers," he pointed out. "If you extract from him what he is in not such a hurry to give you, you will find that after all he is a very good solid fellow and has a good foundation as a citizen."

Sixty per cent of the French population is made up of farmers, Clemenceau said, "and they are the persons who are going to help put France on her feet."

He said France would pay her debts after Germany has paid her obligations to the French nation He reiterated that he is not militaristic and that France is not imperialistic

GREEN ALMOND, NEW HUE IN LONDON; VEILS ARE IN AGAIN

By ETHEL MARSHALL

LONDON, Dec 12 — "Green almond" is in favor.

No, "Green almond" is not a new patisserie or confection; it's the newest color, and is prevailing in autumn hats in fashionable English circles.

"Green almond" appears mostly in velvets, and its only color rival is black, many black hats being seen in the most fashionable shops.

Heavy veils which are draped over hats are quite the thing. Veils are worn in every fashion, from the veil which only shows the mouth to the veils which drop in front almost to the knees. All of the veils are frontal veils and do not hang in the rear at all. Some stunning veils are seen in black lace.

Hats are smaller, but it is predicted that this is just a reverse of the spring fashion. The toque and the tiny hat will be in favor during the autumn and winter months, but the best milliners are laying in hundreds of huge, floppy shapes for the spring.

Hairdressers are already anticipating the return of the big hats and are advisinge their clientel that the hair must be permitted to grow and become more full to enable the wearing of the larger hats

For evening wear wigs made in gold or silver tinsel thread, or in red silk floss, are quite the latest thing These wigs are shaped after the fashion of "bobbed hair" and are tied with ribbon bandeau.

An unusual material seen this fall is shaved lambskin. This is being largely used in hats in conjunction with panne velvet and gives an unusual and effective touch. Black and gray lambskin are most popular

Evening gowns are constantly growing longer, and "ankles" give promise of passing out of sight altogether before spring.

Although Abyssinia contains many minerals it is producing only potash on a commercial scale.

MY MARRIAGE PROBLEMS

Adele Garrison's New Phase of

Revelations of a Wife

Copyright, 1922, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

The Reason Madge's Memory Was Jarred Into Wakefulness.

MY opinion of my own astuteness fell in proportion to the rise in my estimation of Miss Cargill's keenness. I had been sure I had deceived every one with my warm greeting of Dicky, and now I had found out that she might as well have listened to my whispered warning of the reporters' presence. I listened eagerly for Mr. Rickett's reply. Had he also penetrated my ruse?

"So you spotted that, too," he said with an admiring note in his voice. "There doesn't much get by you I'll tell the city room! And I agree with you. That young woman has her husband so buffaloed that he can't guess where he gets off. Do you know, I imagine that's the way she keeps him most of the time, uncertain of her emotions—not of her actions—she's too well-poised to give him any chance for criticism. Darn you modern women, anyway! We poor devils had a chance until you began to mix your brains with your hearts—"

"Why drag in the pronoun of the second person?" Miss Cargill murmured with a distinctly provocative note in her voice.

"Do you want me to tell you—Jean?" Mr. Rickett's tone was low, tense, and I scented a romance.

"Not this evening." Miss Cargill returned with apparent flippancy, but I wondered if Mr. Rickett caught, as I did, the elusive tenderness in her intonation. "Jim, I've a theory—a wild one, I'll admit—that he may have staged this stunt on purpose to see how she'd take it. I don't mean the accident—but the rest of the performance."

"A Marble Statue—"

"Dream on, little one," Mr. Rickett advised sardonically. "'Twould be a pity to waken you. At that, there might be a soupcon of truth in it. A man in love with a marble statue like the missus yonder, might try anything once to see if he could make her tearing jealous. But we'll never know, you can bet on that. How about a hot chocolate before we tackle that drive? I suppose we'd better wait to eat until we get back."

"Oh, of course!" Miss Cargill assented. "But I'd surely enjoy a hot chocolate."

They moved down the platform and into the road, while I stood lost in memories which Mr. Rickett's words had called up. It was not the first time I had been called a marble statue.

I remembered the very evening to which Harry Underwood had referred, the one of my first meeting with him and Lillian. I had torn my gown on one of the seats as Dicky and I walked up the aisle between acts, and in the woman's waiting room where I had gone to mend it I had—unseen by the speaker—heard myself referred to as "the Dicky-bird's marble bride."

Madge Files a New Idea.

And it was not so very long ago, when referring to Bess Dean's attempt to annoy me by apparently having a flirtation with Dicky, that my husband had exclaimed with every appearance of earnestness:

"I wish I could make you crazy jealous of me once!"

Was it perhaps possible— I gave a short, ugly little laugh at my own folly, gibing at myself for trying to find a loophole of excuse for Dicky when there could be none. But, despite my own ridicule, I knew that I had filed the idea away in one of my memory compartments, and that some day I would bring it out again and look at it.

The headlights of a motor car pierced the darkness in which I was standing, and the next minute Dicky had sprung out of a taxi and rushed toward me.

"What the devil?" he began excitedly. "Do you mean to tell me they shut up the station and left you out here alone in the dark? Where can I find that station agent?"

He turned to the taxi driver with an air that threatened instant annihilation to the railroad official.

"Don't bother about that now," I interrupted imperatively before the man could answer. "I'm perfectly all right. Nothing at all happened to me, and we probably will never see the town again. So why make a fuss?"

"You said a mouthful then," he returned emphatically. "This section is sure off the map for me from this time on. Of all the gossip-infested, God-forsaken—"

"Not so loud," I cautioned in a whisper, as I moved toward the car, compelling him to forego his vengeance upon the station master. And then we were shut up in the taxi, the driver separated from us by a closed window, and were whirled out into the darkness of the road.

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl of 18. I have been married for two years, and am the mother of a baby girl, who is three months old. But her father does not like her.

I think he is going with other girls. He does not care for me any more. Please advise me what to do.

YOUNG MOTHER.

YOUNG MOTHER: If you keep your baby sweet and dainty, my dear, and yourself and your home cheerful, your husband will grow to love his little daughter. Be patient and sweet, and don't scold or nag him, and his love for you will soon return.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

Some months ago I went around with a college man. Then, all of a sudden we stopped going together for no reason at all. I have not seen him for four or five months. The other day I received a letter from him. He asked me to forget the past and be friends again. Since he has written to me first and apologized, should I renew our friendship?

BROWN EYES.

BROWN EYES: Accept the young man's apology, renew your friendship with him, and act as if there had been no unpleasantness.

Annie Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. Letters to Miss Laurie should be addressed to her, in care of this office.

WINIFRED BLACK WRITES ABOUT Men's Mental Pranks

Copyright, 1922, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Winifred Black

DEAR ME, they're after us again—the men!

What in the world would they do if they didn't have women to laugh at, and to tease and to "study" and to criticise?

How very important we must be, after all.

What a big place we must take in life, if we're going to judge by the amount of breath the men spend discussing us.

Our brains are too small and so are our feet, and our waists are too big and our skirts too short—or too long, or too skimpy, or too full. Either they are immodest and bold, or clumsy and unhygienic.

Cross About It?

And our hair, what a time they do have over our hair—it's too elaborately dressed, or too plain. And when some of us actually cut it off to please ourselves, you would have thought that the end of the world was at hand to judge from the wild dirge that rose like a wake song from the masculine throats.

We marry too young, we marry too old.

We're gad-abouts, and flutter-budgets, and fly-up-the-creeks.

We're giddy, light-minded, frivolous, too fond of amusement.

We are stupid and unprogressive and too much interested in the daily humdrum of the home. We're too literal and too serious and too narrow-minded.

We're vain. We think too much about our complexions and our figures and our hair—look at the way a man has to wait for every one of us when he's going to take us to the theatre, or somewhere else!

Or else we're careless and down-at-the-heels, and not smart and well-groomed enough to suit the modern man.

And now we—ah, we have no souls.

Imagine a woman of sense and character and position getting up at a public dinner and owlishly declaring that men have no souls.

Doubtless there isn't a woman living who hasn't made up her mind half a dozen times at some half-dozen or so periods in her life that men never had, haven't now and never will have even the rudiments of souls.

But she has sense enough to keep her mood to herself and not inflict the world with it, and by and by she gets over it.

Cross about it?

No, indeed!

Own Up Now!

Why should we be cross?

Were you cross when the boy who sat behind you in school pulled the ribbon off your braid just when you were going up to the board to explain a problem?

Were you really cross, honestly now, when that same boy, or some other, waited for you at the schoolhouse door and washed your face with snow?

Of course you hated to have your hair come unbraided, and you didn't like the feel of the cold snow and the rough mitten on your face—but you knew what the boy meant by it.

He never teased a girl unless he was interested in her, and you were sorry for the poor girl who walked so primly and so safely past the snowbank out through the gate home in the chill dusk of the early evening twilight—alone.

You preferred the face-washing and the hair-pulling and the cavorting, awkward followers who suddenly jumped out from behind trees or ran on ahead and fell in the snow with hoarse shoutings—you knew what they meant—oh, yes you did, little as you were! And you rather liked the performance—own up now!

Alas for the day when men stop criticising us sisters.

We'll know, then, that they've stopped thinking about us and that will be for both men and us a sad and sorry day.

Diary of a Fashion Model

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

She Describes a Smart Black Frock of Simple Lines for Daytime Wear.

VERONICA is very fond of sewing in her idle moments.

"If I can bring a scrap of material down here and once get it cut out, it's remarkable how much sewing I can do in off time," she commented.

"Yes, when we are not busy modelling things for customers we may as well employ our time to advantage," I agreed.

"I have so many simple underthings I've made here at the shop, that I think now I'll try a dress," she said.

"What kind?" I promptly asked.

"That's what I don't know yet," she answered.

"Let me help you plan it," I urged.

"The point is that I have some material I want to use," she added.

"And I suppose you're scheming how you can eke out a whole garment from about a yard and a half?" I asked.

Duvetyn and Cut Chiffon Form This Practical Dress.

"You know the symptoms," she said with a laugh.

"Yes, if you will buy material from a bargain counter because it is pretty and cheap, you'll always be struggling with short lengths," I warned her.

"Oh, this is different," she protested. "It's such a beautiful bit of black duvetyn."

"But not quite enough to make a dress?" I asked with suspicion.

"Just that," she admitted. "Now, what am I to do?"

"What else have you?" I asked.

"Some black cut chiffon that I want to use with it," she said.

Just then, Haidee came in and devoted her superior knowledge to the task.

"I declare, I've just been admiring the very dress you should copy," she insisted.

"Where was it?" I asked.

"In one of the shop windows," she told me. "It's lovely and it's very simple."

For answer I handed her a pencil.

"This frock was made of brown velvet and lace, but it would be even more stunning in black duvetyn and cut chiffon," she said.

"The lower part of the frock was of the plain material," she explained, as she sketched. "It came up to attach to sleeves and yoke of the contrasting material, cut all in one."

"Sounds like a most practical garment—one that would do for all hours of the day," I commented.

"And that's the kind of dress I need," Pam said.

"Then all you have to do is bring down your material," I told her. "We'll help you cut it out and you can stitch away."

"If you have any left over you might have a turban, too," Haidee said. She drew a duvetyn affair with the cut chiffon wrapped tight about it.

"I can't wait to get started!" Pam exclaimed. "And I'm delighted because it's easy to make and will be simple enough for morning, noon and night."

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

WEDNESDAY, DEC. 13.

The planetary forecast for this day is optimistic, as it relates to employment, business and the accumulation of money. There is a sign read as precipitating something in the nature of a "windfall" or an unexpected piece of tangible good fortune. It would be well, however, to avoid any rash procedure, and to shun any possibility of litigation. The health should receive more than passing consideration, as it may prove a matter of grave concern.

Those whose birthday it is may look for an eventful year, with unexpected financial gain as well as advancement for those in the employment of others who are undeniably deserving. They should take exceptional care of their physical condition. A child born on this day is likely to be popular and respected, and will make financial successes despite difficulties to overcome.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

"Everything About the House Helps to Make the Home"

By WANDA BARTON

Solving the Problem of Raising Money for Public Charities by Means of Parties.

WOMEN in a suburban town, who were asked to help make money to install local fire protection and pay for an up-to-date hose-cart and hand extinguishers for the volunteer department's use, decided to revive the old-time pound party.

The affair was such a success that the idea should be passed along. In most small places the women are busy raising money to build churches, public playgrounds or hospitals most of the time. Ideas to enable them to wheedle dimes and dollars from every one give out once in a while, and they may be glad to learn about a plan that is old enough to be new.

These women divided their town up in sections and each woman was asked to furnish two one-pound packages and enclose a slip telling their cost and contents and to leave them at a house was able to all in her immediate district. They were asked to avoid certain things. These were carefully listed, so that unusual rather than the commoner things were received. Duplicates were exchanged, so there could be no criticism among the purchasers.

The packages were 25 cents each, regardless of their contents and were sold at an improvised counter all through the evening.

In connection with the pound sale there was a supper. After the supper—for which a stated sum was asked per plate—there was a dance. The entire thing was informal and old-fashioned enough to be a lot of fun.

Every package contained not less than 15 cents' worth and most of them contained more. The packages that remained after the closing hour were sold during the next few days.

The tax on each person was trifling. The supper was contributed by the women. A competent committee did the planning, begging and cooking. Supper was 50 cents and consisted of good coffee and tea, cold meats, potato salad, plenty of good bread and butter, jam and home-made pickles of different varieties and a choice of three kinds of pie. There were over 200 suppers sold and 300 packages, leaving only 15 to be disposed of later. Together a very tidy sum was taken in with cooperative labor, so that the task was not too hard on any one person.

It seems unfortunate that people are so slow to give to a cause, no matter how vital it may be, unless they do it in ways and pies are always good sellers.

In this kind of a way. So if parties must be given, every new idea is valuable to those who are usually the leading spirits in making the plans.

Another idea that has worked well is a poverty party. All guests are taxed for the expensive features of their costume—so much for jewelry, so much for ribbon, laces—all such things. There is a committee to pass upon the guests as they enter. This usually takes a tidy little sum as well as creating merriment. Usually a supper and dance are added and each man pays a modest sum for his dance. Flowers and candy are sold at moderate cost.

Still another idea is to hold an afternoon food sale, preferably Saturday afternoon. Each woman contributes bread, pie, cake, rolls, jelly, preserves, or a fancy dessert. The food is set out on large well-covered tables and the prices are fair but profitable. Each woman may take home her own contribution if it has not been sold. The sale is from 2 to 5. In planning the sales the committee tries to have women furnish things which they make especially well. In this way they have usually a select assortment. Home-made bread,

YOUR HEALTH

How to Bring Real Relief To Some Very Painful Burns

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Commissioner of Health, New York City
U. S. Senator-Elect from New York State

DR. COPELAND

AMONG the most common of human ailments is the pain from burns and scalds. Matches, hot stoves, sputtering lard, curling irons, fire crackers—there are innumerable ways of meeting with this uncomfortable experience.

The seriousness of a burn depends on its depth and the extent of the surface involved. The age of the patient and the part of the body damaged play a part. Very old persons and very young children are more likely to suffer badly even from moderate burns.

Not only is the immediate outcome disagreeable, but also the secondary effects of a burn are sometimes exceedingly grave. Infection, due to carelessness in the treatment of the burn, or later from accidents, may result in pus formation and blood poisoning.

If there is extensive involvement of the skin surfaces the patient may suffer from shock and may die.

If the head, chest or abdomen are badly burned the brain or internal organs may be involved.

If the burn is not extensive, the chief consideration is the relief of pain. To this end the air should be excluded. Almost any local measure recommended for burns is intended to serve this purpose.

Various powders are used. Saleratus or baking soda, flour, alum, bismuth, talcum powder, boracic acid—one of these substances may be sprinkled thickly over the burned surface.

If the hand is the injured part it may be immersed in a vessel containing soda or saleratus solution.

Subacetate of aluminum is a good remedy to relieve the pain. Compresses are dipped in a 5 per cent. solution, and these are laid on the burned surface. They should be kept wet with the solution. Evaporation may be prevented by covering the compresses with a dry towel.

If the skin is unbroken, sweet oil, vaseline, lard or zinc oxide ointment may be applied. Such applications should not be used if there are ruptured blisters, deep burns or broken surfaces from any cause. Their use may result in infection of the wounded tissues and in pus formation.

When the surface is broken picric acid may be employed. Gauze is wet with 5 per cent. solution and applied to the burn. Cotton is placed over this, and the whole dressing is covered with a bandage.

There are various "secret" remedies alleged to have special virtues in the treatment and healing of burns. Most of them consist of paraffine with the addition of olive oil, eucalyptus and other substances. Some authorities contend that equal parts of mineral oil and hard paraffine are just as valuable. To be used they are heated till they run together.

All these paraffine remedies are applied by spraying with an atomizer. First the skin is sprayed. It will be seen that this covers and protects the injured parts from the air.

If the patient suffers from shock—that is, if he is pale, cold, faint, sick at his stomach, and very weak—he needs careful treatment. Send for your family doctor at once, put the patient to bed, keep his head low, cover him with blankets, surround him with hot water bottles, and wait for your doctor to give the skilful treatment he alone can bestow.

Answers to Health Questions

F. G. Q—Kindly state the cause and cure of what physicians term "steam ears."

A—Technically speaking, there is no such term. You may refer to head noises caused by a catarrhal condition extending to the ears.

C. F. B. Q—I have very large, soft lumps on my ankles. Will you kindly tell me of a remedy to cure this condition?

A—Consult an orthopedic surgeon for an examination to determine the cause of your condition, then proper treatment will be prescribed.

* * *

A. P. Q—Would an abscessed tooth be sufficient cause for a despondent and melancholy condition, if a person was otherwise healthy?

A—Yes, the abscessed tooth might cause the condition you mention, from the absorption of the poison it produces.

HEROINES OF HISTORY

Significant Incidents in the Lives of Famous Women

By MARK STUYVESANT

The Way Rosa Bonheur Became a World Famous Artist.

IN the first half of the nineteenth century a strange figure was often seen around the abattoirs and stock-yards of Paris. It was that of an attractive young man, always with his easel and painting kit hung over his shoulder.

His free young swagger, red cheeks and never-failing industry attracted much attention. The men at the slaughter houses often invited him to have a drink, and were amused by the face this young artist made as he swallowed it. The girls of the neighborhood were enamoured of him, and tried in various flirtatious ways to attract his notice. But he would have none of it. His eyes were only for his work.

But this was not the only reason for his indifference. The artist was not what people thought—a boy. "He" was one of the world's most famous woman painters—Rosa Bonheur.

This remarkable girl was born in a garret. Her father was a painter of some merit, but with no ability to sell his pictures. At an early age, because Rosa detested school, her father apprenticed her to a seamstress. But her little hands found no delight in the uninspiring monotony of taking stitch after stitch. They were eager for other work.

All her spare moments were spent in her father's studio, painting or modelling. She tried painting everything—landscape and people, but her great joy was to paint animals, because she loved them.

Finally, her father realized that this was the one thing in which Rosa might excel, and he permitted her to leave the seamstress and work in his studio at painting.

One day Rosa painted an amazing picture of a goat. It was so perfect that her father and she decided that animal life was her forte. From then on she concentrated on painting animals. And it was the most congenial work for her because of her great love for all dumb creatures.

Rosa Painted an Amazing Picture.

In fact all of Rosa Bonheur's affections seemed to have been entirely devoted to her work. It was enough for her. And the animals she painted loved her. She never had a romance. She was even honest enough to make the statement that no man ever fell in love with her and that she had never truly loved any man save her father.

The one whom she might have had for a home and family was spent on her art.

So splendid was her work that when this little girl grew to womanhood she painted one of the great pictures of the world. This is "The Horse Fair," which graces the walls of one of the galleries of the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York city.

Her country, France, recognized her genius by making Rosa Bonheur a member of the Legion of Honor—an unheard of distinction for a woman at that time.

With her brush, Rosa Bonheur won the love as well as the admiration of many persons. Her beautiful work has given pleasure to thousands. This endears her to us as one of the heroines of the artistic world.

THE REWARD OF GOODNESS.

JIMMY GRASSHOPPER was a fine little grasshopper boy.

Every morning after he had finished his mother's work, he would go over and help Granny Cricket, who was so old she could not see any more, but not for pay, because Granny Cricket was as poor as Mama Grasshopper.

"Just the same, Jimmy," his mother would say, "always do what you can to help her. Maybe some day—who knows—you and I will be rich. Then we can really help to make Granny Cricket's life pleasant."

"We might be rich if I could join that jumping contest," chirped Jimmy Grasshopper. "But I need red leggings to be able to go into the contest."

"Too bad, dear," his mama would sigh. "But cheer up—it's not too late yet. Maybe you'll find a wishing berry, then everything will be fine."

This was in Jimmy Grasshopper's mind one morning when he went out to the meadow to practise hopping. He found a big, blue-bottle fly tangled in Mr. Garden Spider's web, and Jimmy Grasshopper, forgetting everything else, hastened to free Mr. Blue-Bottle Fly before Mr. Spider returned.

"Indeed, I'm very grateful for your help," buzzed Mr. Blue-Bottle Fly, "and to prove my gratitude I want you to take this," and he handed Jimmy Grasshopper a tiny red berry. Thanking Jimmy Grasshopper once more, Mr. Blue-Bottle Fly flew away.

Jimmy Grasshopper smiled and stuck the tiny red berry in the top of his stocking. The next time he glanced down he nearly jumped out of his shoes with joy, for his yellow stockings had turned to a beautiful red.

Jimmy Grasshopper lost no time in entering his name on the contest list, much to the amusement of the other grasshoppers. They made all manner of fun of Jimmy Grasshopper, but never once did he lose his temper.

"One can never tell," he would say, rubbing the red berry. "I'm not the best jumper, but I may come in for second prize."

When the day for the contest arrived, Jimmy Grasshopper took his place, rubbed the tiny red berry in his pocket, and started off with the others, but, would you believe it, when the contest was finished, Jimmy Grasshopper had outhopped the whole crowd, and, of course, he won the prize.

He hopped across the meadows to tell the news to his mama. He could hardly travel fast enough, but when he spied a little cricket in trouble, Jimmy Grasshopper took time to help him.

"Now," chirped Mr. Cricket, "you have proven yourself worthy, and may keep the magic red berry." And, turning himself into a blue-bottle fly he flew away.

Then Jimmy Grasshopper knew how he happened to win the jumping contest. The blue-bottle fly and the cricket in trouble were none other than a good fairy, and she had rewarded him for his kindness.

Council Wrestles With Paving And Hallowe'en Claims

Council was busy Monday evening rushing thru plans for the paving of east State-st from River-st east to the corporation line of Newcomerstown.

Some of the members of council favored the paving of State-st with state and county aid, but wanted the village to do the supervision of the work. Council is now aware of the fact that when the state has a hand in paving, the state highway commission will supervise the work.

The councilmen were of the opinion that they should be entitled to supervise work they help to pay for.

Councilman Elmer Peoples made a motion which was seconded by Councilman Tschudy that the street and roads committee, composed of Councilman Neiderhauser and Councilman Starker, and Engineer Arnold and Solicitor P. S. Olmstead meet with the county commissioners at New Philadelphia on December 18 in regard to the east State-st paving.

Council is in favor of paving of east State-st with six-inch concrete base, sand cushion, pressed brick and asphalt filler.

Since the west State-st paving looks like an O. K. job and has met with the approval of both council and the citizens of Newcomerstown, it has been the object of council to plan the paving of State-st from one end of town to another. A more detailed report of the proposed paving of State-st will be made at the meeting in New Philadelphia Monday night, it is believed.

Mayor W. T. Banning was in receipt of $52.16 Monday from Mr. Sheets for a tap on a sanitary sewer. When the sewer permit was given to Mr. Sheets, in 1920 by Mayor John Ross, it wasn't thoroly understood.

Peoples moved and it was seconded by Councilman Neal that Frank Marlatt be obliged to pay the sum of $40 by January 2, 1923 for use of sanitary sewer to which he is connected.

Council is contemplating securing waste paper receptacles in the near future to place on the streets. A book, in which were pictures of different styles and kinds of waste paper receptacles, was passed around among the councilmen last evening. The receptacle that met the approval of the councilmen, was the Solar self-closing receptacle made entirely of steel. The top of the receptacle is of 16-gauge sheet steel and the body is of 18-gauge galvanized steel. The exterior is painted with waterproof paint.

No action was taken on the purchasing of the waste paper receptacles at last night's meeting. The approval of the solicitor is yet to be secured.

Council was in receipt of two letters, one from Elmer Portz and another from Ralph Braumback asking for damages done to their automobiles on Hallowe'en night in Newcomerstown.

Mr. Portz is asking damage in the amount of $14.75 for the damage done to his car by a rope stretched across the street at River and Canal-sts. Mr. Braumbach is asking for damages in the sum of $29.21 done by a rope stretched across Bridge-st, near Canal-st. The ropes were stretched by town officials on Hallowe'en night in order to prevent traffic from entering on Main-st while the parade was going on.

Councilman Tschudy made a motion and Councilman Neal seconded it that the damage claims be placed on file for investigation.

During the month of November, $173.60 was taken in by Mayor Banning for fines. The mayor's report also included $15 for licenses, one sewer permit of 50 cents, making a total report of $189.10.

Council voted that Pay Ordinance No. 25 be adopted.

Newcomerstown is to have a new street commissioner by the first of the year, was the report received at council meeting last night.

BASKETBALL TEAM TO PLAY DENNISON

The Newcomerstown high school basketers will journey to Dennison on Friday night of this week where they will tangle with the fast high school aggregation of that city.

Dennison boasts of a fast quintet. The Newcomrestown boys have not lost any games on this season's schedule. According to word received Tuesday, many fans from Newcomerstown plan to make the trip with the local team to Dennison.

On Tuesday night, December 18, the Coshocton high school quintet will mix with the Newcomerstown high school at Newcomerstown. There is keen rivalry between the two teams. In all sorts of sport such as tennis, baseball, football and basketball, the two teams have always been bitter rival.

A capacity house is expected for the game.

Good Attendance At Special Meeting

The Baptist church was comfortably filled Monday night to hear the sermon, "The Bridge Across The Chasm of Death." The sermon was preached by the Rev Harley Fletcher, pastor of the church.

During last week the meetings were well attended and it is the hope of the evangelist and the pastor to have just as good attendance this week as last.

Evangelist Scruby will preach tonight on "The Gospel For Today." Rev. Fletcher preaches on Wednesday night and Rev. Scruby again on Thursday evening. The subject [illegible] Friday and Saturday

Many Enjoy Dance

Scott's Premier orchestra from Wheeling, W. Va., again scored another big hit in Newcomerstown when they played for the dance at Casino dance hall in the Lydick building, Monday night.

The attendance was the largest since Hallowe'en night. Patrons attended from New Philadelphia, Dover, Dennison, Uhrichsville and Coshocton. The bulk of the out-of-town patrons hailed from Coshocton.

Splendid music was furnished.

The next dancing event will be on Christmas Day, Monday, December 25. Dancing will be enjoyed afternoon and evening, it was announced.

Russell Funeral

Funeral services will be held Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the Colored Baptist church in Newcomerstown for Mrs Maria Russell aged 83, colored, who died at her home in Clow-av, Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Mrs. Russell's death was due to infirmities of age. She lived with her grandson, Jack Russell.

One daughter, whose name and place of residence could not be learned, survives.

Is Improving

Improvement was shown Tuesday in the condition of Mrs James Turner, of Newcomerstown, who was injured in an automobile accident last Saturday night near Waggoner's Corner

Mrs. Turner is confined to the City hospital in Coshocton suffering from bruises and cuts, and probably internal injuries.

Attending physicians believe she will recover.

Building Wired

Pupils in the west school building resumed their studies in their respective rooms Tuesday after enjoying a vacation Monday. The building was closed yesterday on account of workmen wiring the building for electricity. The work was completed yesterday.

Work Is Scarce

Several men employed at the brass works have been laid off on account of slack work, was the report received in Newcomerstown Tuesday. It is likely that the men will be off of work for some time, is the report.

Is Improving

A slight change for the better was noticed Tuesday in the condition of Mrs. W. W. Wilson, Church-st, who is confined to her home seriously ill. Slight hopes are entertained for her recovery.

Has Scarlet Fever

Betty Gross, River-st, is the latest patient suffering from scarlet fever. The child's condition was not at a serious stage Tuesday, according to the attending physician.

The child was stricken Monday.

At Presbytery

The Rev. Glenroie McQueen, pastor of the Presbyterian church, returned home Monday after attending a called meeting of the Presbytery at Madison, O., yesterday afternoon.

Chestnut Is Paris Harbinger of Winter

PARIS, Dec. 12. It's goodbye Summer, hello Winter!

The chestnut roasters are back again on the street corners of Paris. Nearly every block has at least one cafe with a sheltered corner where the chestnut man installs his great round roaster and bags of nuts. Cool days make business hum, for a bag of hot nuts in his pocket is the Frenchman's way of keeping his hands warm.

Newark Man, Selling Chameleons, Is Fined

NEWARK, N. J., Dec 12. Alexander Alvardites probably turned all colors when he was arrested and fined $5 here for selling live chameleons on the streets, at the behest of the S. P. C. A. The Society charged that chameleons can not withstand the rigors of this climate. The court agreed.

New Bernhardt Play

PARIS, Dec 12. Madame Louis Verneuil has just completed a one-act comedy entitled "L'Homme" (The Man) for her famous grand-mother, the Divine Sarah. It is a mythological piece—scene, Olympia.

the paved road had increased the value of the Duncan land $6 an acre, and decreed that he should pay an assessment of $1,050, fixed by the common pleas court. The original assessment was something over $2,000.

Pomerene & Pomerene represented the plaintiffs in these two cases and Leech represented the defendants, the county commissioners, county treasurer and county auditor.

The judgment of the common pleas court in awarding Mrs. Emma Mowery $50 damages in the suit of the J. B. Colt Co. against Mrs. Emma Mowery, administrator, was affirmed by the appellate court. The case arose over payment for an acetylene lighting system installed in the Mowery home by the plaintiff company. The company sued for payment, and the defendant asked $500 damages from the company, claiming the lighting plant was useless, and did not comply with the specifications of the contract.

Shepler & Burklew represented the Colt Co. and T. H. Wheeler the defendant.

The cases of Elizabeth Hendricks against B. F. Tyler, and the Bedford Coal By-Products Co. against William Lanyon and M. Q. Baker, administrators, were taken under consideration.

Before closing the court, the judges commended the attorneys for their promptness in submitting the cases and thanked them for their co-operation.

taken bi-chloride of mercury, shortly after admitting in the presence of her husband, relations with Reed.

Browne is a city hall reporter for the Lima Republican Gazette. He and his wife came here two months ago from Cleveland, where Browne was employed as a reporter.

Reed's home is in New York. He joined the evangelistic party at Indianapolis over a year ago.

Police say his conduct has been investigated on other occasions since he has been in Lima. Reed is 24 years old, and a handsome blonde.

Mrs. Browne is a golden haired blonde of the baby doll type.

"I can't live without Reed," Mrs Browne is said to have told her husband, when she admitted she had met Reed. It was while Browne stepped into the postoffice to intercept a leter which he thot his wife had written Reed that she drank the poison.

The last seen of Reed was Monday morning. At that time the evangelist declares he warned Reed that unless his attentions to Mrs Browne ceased he would be dropped immediately from the roster of the revival party.

Browne and his wife have been married less than a year. His home is in Baltimore.

were not nominated then other action should be taken under provisions of the state laws.

Provisions were made for the organization of states with membership limited to unions, farmers' organizations and liberal political parties. Such conferences shall be summoned as soon as possible after the adjournment of this conference, it was provided.

The policies of the Workers Party, and Young Workers League were declared not in accord with the aims and objects of this conference and three delegates headed by C. E. Ruthenberg, the secretary, were excluded with only slight dissent.

These organizations advocate communism.

"This is only a talk fest," in the opinion of Victor Berger, veteran Socialist leader, re-elected to congress from Milwaukee at the last election. "We'll go along with them, but I do not hope for any immediate results. The railroad labor unions are flushed with what they think were great victories in the last election. However, I hope for something out of the next gathering."

At noon the report of the organization committee was still under discussion with probabilities of a fight looming over the provision providing for continued use of the primary, instead of the organization of a new party.

the disease, Anderson declares. He rather ridiculed the practice of going into the western states to fight the disease.

Last year there were 6,500 deaths from the disease in Ohio. At present there are 50,000 active cases of the disease in the state. Eleven years ago the death rate was 160 to 100,000. Last year the rate was [illegible] to 86 a 100,000.

Anderson declared that if the disease could be wiped out, it would add two and one-half years to the average lifetime in the country.

In closing his talk, Dr. Anderson spoke of the good work being done in the fight against tuberculosis with the money raised by the sale of Red Cross Christmas Seals.

Among the guests of the club Tuesday were Hon. Lewis B. Houck of Mt. Vernon and Hon. Frank N. Patterson of Ashland, appellate court judges, Don Elkins of Mansfield and J. C. Homer Durand. Patterson is in charge of the sale of Red Cross Christmas Seals in this state.

MORFORD IS BETTER

It was still considered doubtful Monday whether Merrill Morford, of Tenth-st, would recover.

Three weeks ago Sunday Mr Morford was struck and knocked down by a Ford coupe driven by R. W. McGiffen, Park-av.

Altho he is rational, Mr. Morford was still suffering much pain Monday. His head was badly hurt as a result of the accident.

REFORMERS PLAN TO FREE PRISONS FROM POLITICIANS

OBERLIN, Dec. 12—Ohio politicians no longer will be able to use the penal institutions of the state as a means of furnishing jobs for the faithful, if plans of an organization which is being formed at Oberlin are carried out.

As yet, this organization is just a local committee known as the prison committee in Ohio. It is laying plans however, to perfect an organization in every part of Ohio. It proposes to take the state's penal institutions out of party politics and create such public sentiment as will "raise the administrations of prisons to the level which the great mass of scientific knowledge and the new social ideals in their judgment demand."

Professor H. A. Miller, social department Oberlin college is chairman of the committee.

"While the ultimate goal will be quite a change from the present condition, yet it is in no sense revolutionary," declared Professor Miller. "Prisons over the country have always been notorious for the opportunities they furnish for partisan graft and inefficiency. Unfortunately the ordinary citizen's interest in prisons lags behind his interest in other reforms."

The committee is arranging for a three-day convention to be held the middle of February.

Speakers and experts of national reputation, including Thomas Mott Osborn and Hasting Hart, who is president of the American Prison Association, Prof. J. E. Hagerty, Ohio State university, Judge Hoffman, Cincinnati and E. C. Shaw, of Akron, will be present.

All organizations which are interested in public welfare in Ohio will be invited to send delegates, including women's clubs, the League of Woman Voters, city clubs, ministers' associations, business men's clubs, farmers' organizations and members and committees from the state legislature.

Governor-Elect Donahey's interest has been manifest in the plan.

RAPA ISLAND IS NEAR-PARADISE FOR THE MALES

But Women Not Too Anxious To Wed Native Men And Be Their Slaves

MEN OUTNUMBERED FOUR TO ONE

White Men Preferred By Island "Flappers;" Hence The Increase In Beach Combers

By IRENE CORBALLY KUHN

HONOLULU, T. H., Dec. 12. — Overwhelming numerical superiority of females does not necessarily mean that the men are chased up hill and down dale by the females who outnumber them. There is the Island of Rapa, for instance, in the Austral group in the South Pacific, about which some writer of frenzied fiction, in an endeavor to out-O'Brien the redoubtable Frederick himself, wove glittering narratives that made all pervious tales of the South Seas evaporate into thin air by comparison.

Now comes the real truth about Rapa from the lips of J. F. G. Stokes, backed up by Mrs. Stokes, who went with her husband on a two-year expedition to the Austral group in the interests of the Bishop Museum of Honolulu, where Dr. Stokes is ethnologist. Dr. and Mrs. Stokes have just returned to Honolulu.

Rapa is a land of laziness and ease — for the men — says Dr Stokes. The Rapa male population is, for the most part, too lazy to live, and so there are four women for every man. Does the beauteous Rapa flapper get out her hatchet when she wants a beau and go after him with several others of her age, strength and inclinations? She does not!

Not Too Anxious.

The women of Rapa are not at all anxious to marry the men of their own race, says Dr. Stokes, as, once they are married, they become little more than slaves They have no hold on or control over their husbands, who, despite the fact that each man has only one official wife, never forget that each of them has three other possible candidates for the official wife's position. A double standard prevails in Rapa, too, for if the official wife attempts to enjoy the same privileges that her husband does she is liable to a severe "beating up," to say the least.

The people of Rapa—and this probably means the women especially—are exceedingly hospitable to white men. As a result of the recently published article anent the island and the ideal conditions there several white "beachcombers" have taken up headquarters on Rapa, much to the delight of the native women. Needless to remark Rapa is likely to become the South Pacific beachcombers' new Paradise.

Women Do Work.

Although all the agricultural work and preparation of food is done by the women, Dr. Stokes says that the stories that have been circulated of the actual feeding of the Rapa men by the women are true only in one respect—that is, that the women sometimes feed the men, but not three times, or even once a day. It is the custom on festive occasions for the women playfully to put food into the mouths of the men. The aforementioned frenzied fictionist was on the island on one of these occasions no doubt and sent the news around the world that he had discovered an exclusive heaven - on - earth for men!

MAYORS WANT A LARGER PORTION OF COUNTY TAXES

COLUMBUS, Dec. 12—Decision to launch an active campaign looking to a more equitable division of tax revenues between municipal governments and schools then seek a re-valuation of real estate was reached at a conference here of mayors and city managers affiliated with the Ohio municipal league.

In carrying on this program, it is planned that a municipal bloc shall put its strength against so-called rural and schoolmen's bloc this winter.

It is charged that the two latter bloc's are largely responsible for failure of Ohio municipalities to obtain an equitable portion of tax revenues.

Schools and counties receive more than their just share of tax revenues, it is claimed.

The conferees registered approval of simplification of municipal governmental activities, claiming the legislature has "entangled municipal government in miles of red tape."

The league's campaign will be directed by a "board of strategy" consisting of C. A. Bingham, Lima; president, Kenyon Riddle, Middletown, secretary; Mayor George P. Carrell, Cincinnati; J. Thomas, Columbus and H. G. Bruner, Mansfield, vice presidents.

FRAZEYSBURG'S NEW CHURCH DEDICATED CINCINNATI BISHOP

The dedication of the Frazeysburg Methodist Episcopal church, Sunday, by Bishop W. F. Anderson, of Cincinnati, is an outstanding feature in the history of Frazeysburg Methodist history. Two eloquent and inspiring sermons were preached by Bishop Anderson to packed houses. The dedicatory sermon was preached at morning service and following this subscriptions were taken to wipe out the indebtedness and the entire amount asked for, $12,000, was subscribed. The total expenditure of restoring and enlarging this church was $22,000 and of this amount $10,000 was subscribed at the beginning, leaving a balance of $12,000 which was raised Sunday.

The exterior is of stucco, pebble dashed. The auditorium is newly furnished and has a modern lighting system. There are 14 Sunday school rooms, modern and up-to-date in every particular. Heretofore the growth of the Sunday school has been handicapped for want of space and it is in a position to expand largely.

Dr Franklin McElfresh, District Superintendent, was present at the services and three former pastors, the Rev. Mr Landslittle, of Glouster, the Rev. Mr. Laughlin, of Neil avenue, Columbus, and the Rev. G. M. Hughes, of Crooksville, were there and participated in the afternoon services. The Rev. W. E. Prior is serving his third year as pastor of the church. The building committee is composed of Messrs C. M. Bell, D. M. Fleming, M. D., and Brice Browning.

During the past year the Nashport church raised $17,000 for building purposes and the Frazeysburg church $22,000 making a total of $39,000.

DRESDEN BOY IS SECOND IN RACE

Marion Cox, of Dresden was second to the world's record with an average of 113.2 bushels per acre of corn raised, acording to Wallace E. Hanger, crops specialist of the Ohio State university.

William Gilmore, of Creon, established the world's record by raising 134.1 bushels of corn on 10 acres of Lickingco land. By establishing this record he displaces the record of Clarence Slack, of Muskingum-co, which was made in 1919. Slack's record was 128.1 bushels per acre.

The results tabulated last week show that six Ohio farmers are members of the 100 bushels or more per acre club in corn raising for the year.

WISER NOT TO ARGUE WITH THE JUDGE

Lawyer Tells Magistrate He's "Surprised" At "Attitude." Draws Fat Fine.

ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 12.—"Don't argue with the judge—it's costly business." This bit of priceless advice was voiced by Attorney Arthur Heyman, who by an apology in court to Judge John Humphries saved himself from a term of twenty days in jail or a fine of $200.

The alleged infraction of court rules came in the case of Elmer Oliver, former president of the Oliver Rim Company, who was being tried on a charge of embezzlement of more than $100,000 of the company's funds.

The verbal tilt between the attorney who represented Oliver and the Court followed a ruling made by Judge Humphries in permitting certain evidence involving a $1,500 transaction Oliver was said to have made while president of the rim company.

"They are trying to hatch up this item, which never before has been included in the charges," Attorney Heyman told the court.

He attempted to read records concerning previous testimony, but was interrupted by the judge.

"You needn't read that," the judge said. "I am familiar with what has been testified."

"Then do you propose to charge Mr. Oliver with this item?"

"No; I'm not charging him with anything," the judge replied.

"This charge is——" began Heyman.

"Now, Mr. Heyman, you hush up and sit down, or I'll send you to jail!" was the judge's warning.

"All right, certainly," replied the attorney.

"Mr. Sheriff, collect $100 from Mr. Heyman, or keep him in jail ten days!" the Court said. "I am surprised that a lawyer of your standing should insist upon maintaining a disrespectful attitude. The fine must be paid, or you must accept the alternative. That's final. If I can't keep good order I would not be worthy of presiding over the court."

"I am also surprised at your attitude," Heyman replied.

"I am going to give you another $100 or another ten days!" Judge Humphries said

"I won't pay it," announced the lawyer. "I'll go to jail first!"

Later Heyman apologized to the Court and asked that the sentence be revoked.

Judge Humphries removed all of the fine but $25, which the attorney promised to pay.

SEVERE BLIZZARD HITS NORTHWEST; TRAINS DELAYED

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Dec. 12.—A forty mile gale from the west starting Monday afternoon and continuing until this morning brought Minnesota's temperature from 34 above to 6 below zero at 7 o'clock this morning. The whole northwest is in the grip of a blizzard.

Montana, Dakota and western Canada recorded from 22 to 25 below today and Duluth shivered in a 68 mile an hour wind and furious blizzard that disrupted street car traffic and caused freak accidents.

Trains from the Pacific coast were very late.

COLD WAVE IS DUE WITHIN 24 HOURS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—No let-up in the cold wave which has swept nearly the entire country, was seen today by the weather bureau.

During the next 24 hours, the bureau said, it will spread over the lower lake region, the Ohio valley, Tennessee, the east Gulf states and greater portion of the Atlantic states from northern Georgia and northern South Carolina northward.

The lowest temperature reported today was 34 below zero at Havre, Mont.

Pygmy Elephant Uses Booze as Anaesthetic

NEW YORK, Dec. 12. — Clarence, three feet high, three years old and something of a souse, has arrived from the French Congo. Clarence is a pygmy elephant and believed to be the only one in captivity. He never can attain more than five feet.

Clarence's name in Congoese is "Miamba." Aboard the S. S. President Van Buren a major operation was performed on one of his hind legs. Clarence first was thoroly inebriated with rum in lieu of an anaesthetic. He loves being operated upon. Clarence had a suite de luxe with all the elephantine comforts he could desire.

Priest's Gold Found In Camera—Keeps It

PARIS, Dec. 12—Monsieur Bisjon, greengrocer, at Hericy-sur-Seine, bought a kodak at the sale of objects belonging to a deceased priest named Charpentier. Upon opening it he discovered to his great surprise and delight the little sum of 25,000 francs in gold. The old priest, a good patriot, no doubt, encouraged his little flock to turn over their gold pieces to the government in war days. But he himself did not hasten to practise what he preached. If only the poor inherit the Kingdom of Heaven the old priest will probably be missing.

Cows and Camels Haul Food to Starved Reds

LONDON, Dec. 12. — Milk cows and camels transported American food to 350,000 starving children and adults in the Aktubinsk section of northern Russia due to the absence of other transportation facilities last winter, J. B. Fitzgerald, of Rome, New York, stated here recently in forecasting similar grave conditions in that section against this winter. Fitzgerald was the American Relief Administration representative at Aktubinsk for nearly a year.

BRITAIN TO PUT MILLIONS IN SHIP

MAJOR DARE DIES

ZANESVILLE, Dec 12—Major J. Z. Dare, aged 84, died at his home in this city late yesterday afternoon from infirmities of age. He retired from the army about 20 years ago and won his commission in the Cuban war. He was known in army and diplomatic circles in all parts of the world.

CEMETERY

South Lawn cemetery, and that no money was accumulating in the cemetery department treasury. The money received from lots sold is used to pay for work done in the two cemeteries.

There is no revenue coming from the Oak Ridge cemetery, according to Wells. With each additional lot sold, the expense of cleaning is greater, and the source of revenue less.

He suggested that an endowment fund be raised for Oak Ridge, and the assesment plan be used for South Lawn. Approximately $500 would care for Oak Ridge, Wells believes.

He also asked that a new gate be erected to the entrance of South Lawn cemetery.

Wells' suggestions were well received by the council members, and President Davis suggested that the council finance committee meet with Wells to give the suggestions further consideration.

Mrs. W. W. McCullough, chairman of the council ordinance committee, reported that that committee had decided to withhold its report on the proposal to authorize the mayor to appoint a committee to act in conjunction with the Community Service Association, until the legality of the proposal can be ascertained. A written opinion on the question has been requested of the attorney general, she said, and until it is received, no further action will be taken.

She also reported, that in the future, all ordinances prepared by anyone other than the city solicitor, would have to be submitted to the council ordinance committee and the solicitor, before being placed before the council as a whole.

Two certificates of indebtedness were passed at the meeting Monday evening. In order to pay employes of the safety department before Christmas and to clear up city records by the first of the year, a certificate for $1,806.55 was passed to provide money for December's pay.

Another certificate in the amount of $514.76 was passed to pay bills of the safety department that have been due since 1921.

Because the next regular meeting night falls on Christmas, council will not meet again until Tuesday evening, December 26, President Davis announced Monday evening.

Bull Demonstrates China-Shop Proverb

POINT PLEASANT, W. Va., Dec. 12. — The old saying about the bull in the china shop has just had a demonstration here. The bull, a huge one, became frightened in the streets and plunged into Rupert Kayser's restaurant thru the front plate glass window. The animal then smashed its way among tables, chairs and dishes into the kitchen, going thence into the alley in the rear. Nobody was hurt, but there was a lot of broken china, glass and furniture in the place after the bull left.
